YANK TANKS HELP HOLD NAZIS

MANSFIELD'S TAX RATE GOES UP 20 CENTS

Court Ruling on 10-Mill Bond Limitation Causes Hike In City's Assessments.

RATE TO BE 16.20 MILLS

Increase Will Enable School Board to Pay Higher Wages To Teachers, Employes.

Mansfield's tax rate will go up 20 cents per $1,000 property valuation next year, while 11 of the county's taxing districts will have lower rates, three will have higher rates, and 14 will pay the same tax they paid this year.

The new Mansfield rate will be 16.20 mills as compared with 16 mills this year, County Auditor Norman L. Wolfe said. City property owners, however, will be rid of the Mansfield Conservancy district tax.

The increase, which the auditor pointed out could have been much greater in the city, is the result of a recent Supreme court ruling which requires the county budget commission to list bonds voted before 1933 outside the 10-mill limitation was placed on Ohio tax rates that year. Money to pay off old bonds previously was collected inside the 10 mill rate.

With the Mansfield board of education needing more revenue to pay increases in teachers' and school employes' salaries, the board asked the budget commission to place the Senior high school building bonds outside the 10-mill limitation. Approximately $260,000 remains to be paid on the Senior high debt.

Wolfe said the rate change will give the city schools an additional one mill revenue for operating purposes.

He said removal of the Conservancy tax levy from the duplicate and the payment of part of the city's debt during the past year helped to keep the rate down.

Removal of the Conservancy district levy took two-tenths of a mill off the rate. The Conservancy district debt will not be paid off until next year, but the district has enough of a balance and enough delinquent levies to be collected to meet the debt, the budget commission ruled.

Biggest tax rate increase in the county next year will be at Lucas where the rate will go up to 17.40 mills from 15 mills this year. The boost is due to bonds voted last year to finance improvements to the water system in the village.

GETS 30 YEARS

Bahr Convicted of Conspiracy To Serve as Nazi Spy.

NEWARK, N. J.—(AP)—Herbert K. F. Bahr, convicted of conspiracy to serve Germany as a spy, received a 30-year prison sentence today.

The sentence was the maximum prison term possible under the espionage statutes, but the court could have ordered his execution.

Judge William F. Smith, who imposed sentence in federal district court, expressed the belief Bahr was still protecting Nazi colleagues. "From my experience," the court told him, "I believe you have not turned over to the government all the information you have. I believe you have other names and addresses."

At no time did Bahr look at Judge Smith. He kept his eyes on the table before him.

President Reported Ready to Stabilize Wages, Still Debating About Salaries and Control of Farm Prices

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—From usually reliable administration sources it was learned today that President Roosevelt has about decided to stabilize wages, but is debating whether to include salaries, as well.

Wages and salaries, along with control of farm prices, were described by these sources, who preferred to remain anonymous as the major decisions to be made before the chief executive delivers his Labor day message on the cost of living.

Presidential advisers have divided the compensation question into three parts, as follows:

WAGES—Primarily manual labor, especially in war factories, paid on an hourly or daily basis. Unofficial guesses are that the president will ask that wage rates in this field be stabilized, by permitting increases in the hourly or daily rates of pay only if the raise is in proportion to the rise in the cost of living. Apparently, there will be no interference with workers getting bigger pay envelopes by working more hours.

SALARIES—Mostly white collar workers paid by the week, month or year, up to $10,000 a year. If included at all, some allowance probably will be made for pay raises accompanying bona fide promotions.

BIG INCOMES—Salaries and other forms of compensation in excess of $10,000 a year. Some suggestions have been made of discouraging such large incomes by forbidding employers from taking income tax deductions as part of their operating expenses, for more than $10,000 for any one employe. Also some consideration for budgeting each

BELFAST CROWD JEERS AMERICAN TROOPS IN RIOT

Police Break Up Demonstrations After Hanging of IRA Member For Murder.

BULLETIN

BELFAST, Northern Ireland—(INS)—A popular demonstration against the execution of Thomas Williams grew in intensity and spread through northern Ireland today following announcement that the youthful member of the outlawed Irish republican army had been put to death.

(By Associated Press)

BELFAST, Northern Ireland—The appearance of two United States soldiers on Belfast streets touched off the first disorders today soon after Thomas J. Williams, 18-year-old member of the outlawed Irish Republican army, was hanged in a heavily guarded jail for the killing of a policeman.

Police dispersed a crowd of about 300 persons who shouted angrily at the Americans: "Why don't you stay at home?" Two demonstrators hurled missiles.

The police charged with drawn batons and the crowd quickly scattered. Other throngs had collected outside the jail where Williams was hanged, but, save for a mild street demonstration, there had been no other outbreak.

This northern Ireland capital had been declared out of bounds for United States troops and the presence of the two soldiers, neither of whom was harmed, was not immediately explained.

The crowd was singing Irish republican songs when the soldiers first were seen. The Americans were greeted with stiff-armed Nazi-style salutes and jeering comment.

Two of the demonstrators were arrested on charges of rioting and were sentenced to three months' imprisonment.

Willkie Reaches Cairo On Way To Russia For FDR

CAIRO—(INS)—Wendell Willkie arrived here by plane today en route to Moscow on a special mission for President Roosevelt.

He was greeted by U. S. Ambassador Alexander Kirk, Richard G. Casey, British envoy to the Middle East, and Brig. Gen. Russell Maxwell, chief of the United States military mission in the Middle East.

Showing signs of strain from his long journey, Willkie said smilingly that he had experienced a good trip. After posing for photographers, he proceeded to the United States embassy.

Despite his protests of innocence, the stepfather, Roger W. Mason, a 49-year-old machinist, was charged with murder.

These Stars Will Visit City

Mansfield will get a chance to see three of Hollywood's brighter stars when they arrive here Saturday, Sept. 15, to help boost the sale of war bonds in a special "10 Per Cent Month" and "Salute to Our Heroes" campaign being staged throughout September. The stars scheduled to appear here are: Fred Astaire, top left, famous dancing star; Hugh Herbert, bottom left, one of the screen's funnier funny-men, and Ilona Massey, right, one of the loveliest of Hollywood's singing stars. The actors will make a tour of Mansfield industrial plants to spur the "10 Per Cent" plan and will sell bonds at a rally in Central park in the afternoon.

Fred Astaire, Hugh Herbert, Ilona Massey to Sell Bonds

Mansfield will have three top-ranking motion picture stars visit the city on Sept 15 to help the September war bond sales committee sign up industrial plants under the "10 Per Cent Month" plan to meet the month's sales quota of $587,000.

The stars who will arrive here before noon on Saturday, Sept. 15, will be dancer Fred Astaire, comedian Hugh Herbert and singer Ilona Massey, all well-established stars in their own field.

The announcement that the three stars will visit the city was made by Paul M. Eliot, Richland county bond sales chairman. It was originally planned that only one star would come here.

Eliot's announcement followed the kick-off of the special September campaign last night in all Mansfield theaters. Spontaneous sales following short inspirational meetings netted approximately $35,000 in less than a half hour.

Eliot expressed great satisfaction with the opening of the drive which is being steered by a special committee of 14 industrial and civic representatives. The committ-

Mansfield bank clearings last month dropped nearly $1,000,000 below August, 1941, and were second lowest for any month this year, Richard Wynn, secretary of the Clearing House association, reported today.

The August total was $9,598,574. Clearings for August last year were $10,545,572 and for July of this year, $10,901,921.

Mansfield banks handled a total of $81,727,543 during the first eight months of this year, a gain of $3,398,183 over the corresponding eight months of 1941, the Clearing House records show.

BARS GO UP AT LAST ON TARDY CITY BUSINESS

Late Legislation Sidetracked as Council Decides to Heed Deadline Rule.

Following several months of indecision on demands that established filing-time deadlines for legislation be enforced city council last night unanimously voted re-affirmation of a 1936 resolution which blocked consideration of proposals placed in the council hopper after 4 p. m. Monday.

Shortly after the present council organized last January Roy W Vaughn, member-at-large, called a caucus of Republican members and urged enforcement of the rule requiring that all matters be filed with the city clerk not later than 4 p. m. on the day preceding any meeting. Caucus approval of the suggestion, until last night, had been ignored.

Immediately after council convened Vaughn was permitted to read the 1936 provisions and his motion for re-affirmation won full approval.

Together with a number of fund appropriation and transfer measures, the proposal of Mayor W. J. Locke to create the post of clerk in the police bureau of identification, went by the board.

With a revision declaring it an emergency matter, council voted $1,500 to cover the cost of a new 2,500-foot slag-filled runway at municipal airport. This sum will be used, in addition to the balance of a $5,000 appropriation voted in June for repair and maintenance of runways and other port facilities.

Council will meet in special session at 7:30 p. m. Friday to consider certain of the held-over legislation.

Action will be taken then on the request of City Engineer W. C. Statler for an appropriation of $700 to cover unanticipated in-

CHECKS MAILED

$4,500,000 on Way to Families of U. S. Soldiers

WASHINGTON—(INS)—Thousands of checks—payments under the service men's dependents allowance act—today were being mailed to relatives and dependents of men in the army and navy.

Checks totalling $4,500,000 were being mailed by the war department to the relatives and dependents of 36,000 enlisted men. Some 12,000 checks were mailed yesterday and 24,000 will be mailed before Sept. 15.

Advance payments of $5,808,000 already have been made to dependents of some 40,000 soldiers. The army checks now being mailed cover amounts that have accrued since June 1 and processed up to Aug. 29.

The navy last week mailed out checks totalling $17,435 to dependents and relatives of men below the rank of third class petty officer, covering applications approved for June and July.

Nazis Report British Conduct Maneuvers at Gibraltar.

BERLIN (From German Broadcasts)—(AP)—DNB said in a dispatch today from Algeciras, Spain, that the British were conducting large-scale maneuvers at Gibraltar with the land garrison and naval and air forces engaged. It said one bomber engaged in the operations crashed and exploded.

(There has been no British report of any such maneuvers.)

'Unsavory' Nazi

LONDON—(AP)—A Daily Express dispatch from Stockholm said today that Julius Streicher, Nazidom's most outspoken anti-Semite and former governor of Franconia, had been arrested by the Gestapo on Hitler's orders. The dispatch said the arrest was made several weeks ago, after a long personal investigation by Hitler, on accusations that Streicher had embezzled party money and had been "involved in the most unsavory affairs."

Real Estate Dealer Charges Canine Kept at Workman Home 'Noxious.'

Charles R. Callihan, Mansfield real estate dealer, today sought an injunction in common pleas court to restrain Misses Helen and Florence Workman and C. H. Workman, 521 Park avenue west, from keeping dogs at their home under conditions which Callihan contends cause the animals to be "a nuisance and noxious" to neighbors.

For a number of years the Workman sisters and their father, well known Mansfield attorney, have cared for stray dogs in the city area. In recent months they have sought to have county dog funds turned over to the Angell Refuge society, in which they are active members, to provide a home for stray pets.

Londoners Cheer Americans During Welcome Parade

LONDON—(U.P.)—The Stars and Stripes waved from rooftops and an estimated 300,000 Londoners cheered as American troops swung through London today in their first official parade to receive a ceremonial welcome to Great Britain.

Detachment after detachment of air corps men, infantry, marines and engineers marched briskly through the ancient streets.

London's spirit was exemplified by an old lady who approached a doughboy on leave standing among the spectators and said: "Thank you so much for coming over."

A crack infantry band from a North Ireland camp led the parade. Frequently the doughboys broke out with songs, favoring the World War I favorite, "Over There."

The troops, wearing full dress uniforms, pushed off at 11:30 a. m. from Grosvenor square, then marched through west end streets past Hyde park, winding on to London city.

Twenty marines and 300 regular army troops were selected to represent the entire force at a luncheon in the hall given by the lord mayor.

'Found Money' Swindle Racket Works Again, Costs Woman $74

Similar to the manner in which a Richland county woman lost $350 several weeks ago in the well-known "found money" swindle, Beauty Lee Gardon, colored, 203 East Fourth street, yesterday surrendered $74 to a trio of swindlers, she told police.

The woman told of seeing another colored woman pick up a purse dropped by a white man, and being invited to examine the contents. A third colored woman appeared in the picture, purportedly giving the finder $500 to insure her good faith and to influence the victim to contribute her savings of $74.

Told to wait in front of a North Main street store, the Gardon woman stood vigil several hours before realizing she had been swindled. Detective Lee Remy and Patrolman Howard Schuck made a fruitless hunt for the trio.

Following the swindling of the Richland county woman city detectives visited Cleveland and Springfield in their search for the culprits.

This victim had drawn her bank savings and given it to a colored woman who "found $1,700" on a North Main street sidewalk and then waited hours at the Farmers bank building for the finder to return and give her half of the loot.

U. S. Fliers Hit Enemy Planes, Supply Depots

Smash at Axis Over Entire Battlefront In Western Egypt; Russians Drive Nazis Back North of Stalingrad But Retreat In Southwest

BULLETIN

MOSCOW—(AP)—Soviet marines have defeated the Fifth and Ninth Rumanian cavalry divisions, destroying 70 per cent of their strength, in a battle of growing severity for Black sea coast positions, a Red fleet dispatch reported today.

(By Associated Press)

U. S. Army tanks fighting alongside the British helped bar the path of Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's new three-day offensive in western Egypt today while American fliers shuttled through one of the worst dust storms of the war to blast Axis supply depots and break up German dive-bomber formations over the desert battlefield.

A bulletin from British G. H. Q. said British forces were locked heavily in battle with Axis armored columns all day yesterday in the southern sector of the narrow front.

U. S. Army planes engaged in extensive operations over the entire area, the communique said.

A censored dispatch from Edward Kennedy, Associated Press corespondent at the battlefront, said American tanks in "greater number than ever before" were supporting Gen. Sir Harold Alexander's British imperial armies.

"In the southern sector on Sept. 1, our forces including armor and artillery fought throughout the day with thet enemy's armored forces in the area between El Himeimat and the Ruwiesat ridge," the British command said.

On the northern flank, British forces made their own sally on Monday night and in "a successful raid" captured a batch of German prisoners.

Despite swirling sandstorms, the communique said, Allied planes attacked the enemy on a large scale, breaking up at least two big Stuka formations and pounding enemy transport on the coastal road between Gambut and Sidi Barrani.

The Italian high command asserted that 51 Allied planes had been shot down in two days of aerial fighting and that four others crashed after hits by Italian anti-aircraft fire.

Front-line dispatches said Rommel's armored spearheads had split into two columns after advancing eight miles through British minefields at the southern end of the 35-mile corridor between El Alamein, on the Mediterranean coast, and the desolate Qattara depression.

The main Nazi tank column turned north, it was reported, while a smaller column branched off to the south.

Latest advices said General Alexander was holding back his main tank force, presumably to guard positional advantages, while armored vanguards of the 600-tank Axis army warily probed for

MASK: Japs Try To Cover Up Suspicion of Siberia Attack

(By Associated Press)

Japan attempted to allay suspicion today that she might be preparing an attack on Russia's "back door" as Chinese reports said that 100,000 Japanese troops had been moved north toward Siberia in the past month and that a big Japanese fleet was amassed off north Japan.

Presumably, one of the first targets of a Japanese invasion of Siberia would be an attack on the vital port of Vladivostok, 650 miles across the Sea of Japan from Tokyo.

In an apparent attempt to mask the Tokyo war cabinet's real intentions, a Domei broadcast quoted Premier Gen. Hideki Tojo as declaring that his assumption of the foreign ministry "will not result in any way in an alteration of Japan's foreign policy."

Shigenori Togo, who negotiated the Moscow-Tokyo neutrality pact and was regarded as opposed to Japanese hostilities against Russia, resigned the foreign ministry yesterday.

Togo's resignation, coupled with the aggressive Tojo's decision to take over the foreign portfolio, had been widely interpreted outside Japan as presaging a possible Japanese attack on Siberia.

In Chungking, China's war-time capital, the influential newspaper Ta Kung Pao said that Togo had been known as a pro-Russian and that his exit showed "Japan has no more need to maintain diplomatic relations" with the U. S. S. R.

Other Chinese comment declared the shakeup "portends some

RETURN: 300 RAF Bombers Pay Saarbruecken Fiery Call

(By United Press)

LONDON—A strong force of RAF bombers—around 300 planes—blasted the important German coal center of Saarbruecken during the night.

Only three planes were lost in the raid, which broke a three-day lull in the Allied air offensive against Nazi Europe forced by bad weather.

Waves of RAF fighters, including a squadron of Spitfires piloted by Americans, followed up the Saarbruecken bombing with sweeps over occupied France.

The air ministry said good weather enabled the bombers to pick out their targets at Saarbruecken with ease. First reports spoke of numerous fires and heavy damage.

The American squadron sped toward France at dawn with the first wave of fighters. A second large force of Spitfires cut through low, heavy clouds at 11 a. m. to cross the Straits of Dover at only 200 feet above the waves.

The Spitfires raced toward Dieppe where heavy anti-aircraft fire was heard before the fighters returned, again at low level, 45 minutes later.

A report by the German agency DNB, recorded by the United Press in London, said a small number of British bombers dropped high explosive and incendiary bombs at several places in western Germany last night. Three British planes reportedly were shot down.)

The first wave of planes lighted up the city with incendiary bombs so that the formations following had no difficulty finding targets.

At dawn a force of RAF fighter planes, including an American squadron, passed over Eastbourne on the southeast a "soft spot" which might open a road to the Nile.

Medium bombers of the U. S. 12th bombardment group and heavy bombers of the 98th bomber group attacked Axis rear positions and vital supply lines, and planes of the 57th fighter were in the thick of the fight over the battlefield, slashing at Nazi Stukas.

"We enjoyed it," said Captain Hopkins, of Palestine, Tex., pilot of one of the first three U. S. Army Air corps bombers to attack the advancing Germans. Not a single Allied pilot was lost, it was announced.

Italian field headquarters, still without intimating that a major Axis offensive was under way, said German and Italian motorized troops made a series of thrusts yesterday on the El Alamein front, 80 miles west of Alexandria, and destroyed about 30 Allied vehicles.

On the Russian front, Marshal Semeon Timoshenko's armies drove the Germans into retreat northwest of Stalingrad, wiping out a deep Nazi wedge, but fell back in the southwest as the invaders pressed a grave new threat to the Volga steel city.

A broadcast from pro-Nazi Vichy, France, said German vanguards were only 12 miles from Stalingrad and were striking along a main highway to the city foot by foot. The broadcast indicated that the Russians were making a bitter death-stand defense.

German headquarters said Nazi troops had reached the Volga north of Stalingrad, but did not say how close to the city.

"Southwest of Stalingrad, our troops fought fierce engagements against enemy tanks which had broken through," the Soviet command announced tersely.

"On another sector, our units consolidated themselves in a new defense position and repulsed enemy attacks."

While Stalingrad's peril mounted on the southern approaches, the Red armies appeared to be holding grimly in the north where the fighting centered in a 40-mile corridor between the Don and Volga rivers.

A Soviet communique said the Germans attacked and "drove a deep wedge into our defenses," but Russian troops counter-attacking on the flanks "compelled the enemy to retreat to his original position."

New German gains in the sector below Krasnador, in the western Caucasus, were acknowledged, while on the central (Moscow) front the Russians said they had captured a number of populated places in the Rzhev-Vyazma region 130 miles west of the capital.

In the western air war, the British air ministry said a "strong force" of RAF planes smashed at the big Saar valley steel center of Saarbruecken for the second time in a week.

The air ministry said the attack, carried out in clear weather, was "an outstanding success." Three RAF bombers were listed as missing.

Following up the night assault, a U. S. fighter squadron and RAF Spitfires in formidable numbers streaked across the channel this morning toward the Nazi-occupied French "invasion" coast.

DNB, the German news agency, said Nazi raiders attacked an important steel works at Sheffield last night and a British camp at Dungeness on Dover strait yesterday.

Calls Rommel Move 'Decisive' Attack

LONDON — (INS) — The military expert of the Daily Telegraph said today that it is "certain" that Nazi Field Marshal Rommel's new assault in Egypt is intended as a decisive offensive.

The preliminary advance scored by the Axis on the British southern flank, the writer said, means very little since the imperial defense extends to depths varying from 50 to 100 miles.

A carefully prepared Allied counter stroke may be expected, he added.

BERLIN (From German Broadcasts) — (AP) — The German high command announced today that British prisoners taken in the Dieppe raid would be handcuffed in retaliation for what it said was a captured British order directing that hands of captured Germans be tied to prevent destruction of papers.

The handcuffing of the British —both officers and men — will start tomorrow and continue, the official announcement said, "until the British government by means of an official statement withdraws the above-mentioned order concerning the manacling of German prisoners of war."

English coast headed for France.

Residents on the southeast coast were kept awake most of the night after the first squadron of bombers roared out across the channel about one a. m. A steady procession of planes continued for more than an hour. After a short lull, the first planes began to return. The roar of engines filled the night until 4 a. m.

While a majority of the bombers raced to objectives in Germany, some apparently blasted targets in France because explosions were heard on the English side of the channel.

Last night's concentrated attack on Saarbruecken was the third in recent weeks. The city, noted for its textile, hardware and other industries as well as the rich coal mines in the vicinity, last was bombed Friday night when the RAF also attacked Nurnberg.

Property owners have consented, he reported to the additional assessments which will be necessary and the matter will be declared an emergency and become effective at once to insure completion of the job before freezing weather sets in.

City Solicitor Leslie K. This proposal, on the recommendation of City Auditor Paul —. Mayor Locke withdrew the ordinance late yesterday following conferences with Police Chief Thomas M. Bell and Traffic Commissioner Frend C. Boals.

Last night's surprisingly high bond sales were accounted for chiefly through the activity of the B'nai B'rith organization directed by Mrs. A. J. Goldsmith.

The B'nail B'rith workers manned the sales booths at all theaters last night and circulated through the aisles signing up persons who pledged bond purchases. On the other days of the month, other Mansfield organizations will take over the booths for bond sales.

Eliot said today that he felt the visit of the three motion picture stars here would give "a big boost" to sales. Astaire, Herbert and Miss Massey will tour many of the city's industrial plants to stage rallies to get workers to sign up 10 per cent of their wages for bond purchases.

Later they will stage a bond sales auction in Central park at a mass meeting. The mass meeting will follow a luncheon at the Mansfield-Leland hotel where guests will be admitted after purchasing $100 worth of bonds. The stars will congratulate purchasers and sign autographs.

The stars will make no appearance at any of the Mansfield theaters. This trip will be dedicated solely to the business of selling bonds and in boosting the U. S. Treasury department's "10 Per Cent" plan.

The kick-off programs were held at the Ohio, Madison, Park and Ritz theaters last night. At the Ohio, the audience sang patriotic songs and heard a talk by Eliot.

The Westinghouse CIO band and the color guard of the Alfred J. Harrington post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, led a special sales force which visited the Ritz, Park and Madison theaters.

Eliot said last night that although no Richland county industry had at present a full 10 per cent of their employes signed up for a full 10 per cent that it is believed that several will have signed within the next week.

employer to a total payroll, as in Canada, where compensation of individual business executives may be adjusted up or down as long as the employer's total payroll doesn't exceed some formula.

On farm prices, the president was reported to be choosing between three alternatives:

1. Let farm prices find their own levels, but use government subsidies to hold down the retail price of food.

2. Fix price ceilings on farm products, as now permitted by law at 110 per cent of parity, and use subsidies if necessary to hold down the cost of food.

3. Use war powers to nullify the 110 per cent parity provision and fix ceilings at whatever level that will keep down the cost of food without subsidies.

Another issue to be decided is whether the president will set up a "super board" to administer the cost of living program.

The treasury was reported to be opposing any detailed mention of new taxes in the message, and officials said they also doubted if the president would touch on proposals for compulsory purchases of war bonds.

CIO Moves To Oust 'Obstructionists'

WASHINGTON — (INS) — The CIO, proclaiming full support of the president's war program, today began militant action to eliminate all alleged "obstructionist" senators and representatives from congress.

In giving notice of the formal opening of the election battle, CIO President Philip Murray today handed Justice Samuel Rosenman, presidential adviser, a CIO resolution which declared that labor is assuming "the leadership in smashing attempts to thwart the people's all-out war effort."

The resolution, adopted by the CIO executive board, pledged the full weight of the union behind President Roosevelt's seven-point anti-inflation program.

However, the resolution declared that "labor is opposed to the naming of any czar or supreme dictator to regulate the economic affairs of the nation."

The executive board reiterated the CIO's support of the war labor board as the "effective instrument" for the necessary job of stabilizing wages.

"This does not and must not mean the freezing of wages," said the resolution.

northern Ireland had been ordered to stay out of Belfast today to avoid any violence against them on the part of IRA members who bitterly opposed the execution and have claimed the right to clear northern Ireland of the A.E.F. and British forces by "whatever measures present themselves."

Fear that the hanging would be the signal for widespread violence, especially after the discovery Sunday outside Belfast of a cache of explosives and arms, police were mobilized and a special force was posted around the prison early today.

When an official posted the notice of Williams' execution on the prison wall, a crowd of hundreds of women began a procession toward the center of Belfast, singing "God Save Ireland." As they passed police they gave what spectators described as a Nazi salute. Police broke up the procession, but the women reassembled and continued the march.

While the IRA sympathizers gathered on one side of the street, another crowd gathered on the opposite side and sang the British anthem and "There'll Always Be An England."

The Duke of Abercorn, governor of northern Ireland, refused a final plea to reprieve Williams last night and said "the law must take its course."

Five other Belfast men, convicted with Williams for the slaying of the policeman last Easter, had been granted leniency. Williams took full responsibility for the shooting.

Dublin Business Protests Execution

DUBLIN — (UP) — Nearly all business and industry came to a halt for one hour today in protest against the execution of Thomas Williams, member of the illegal Irish Republican Army.

Some businesses were forced to close by crowds of angry demonstrators who ranged the streets. People swarmed in front of buses and street cars and forced them to halt.

Similar conditions were reported from provincial towns throughout Eire.

GETS PROMOTION WITH OHIO 37TH

Bird Raised to Rank of Lieut. Colonel Letter Reveals.

COLUMBUS — (AP) — Adj. Gen. Donald F. Pancoast received today a letter from Whittier S. Bird, now with Ohio's 37th division overseas, in which Bird said he had been promoted from major to lieutenant colonel.

Bird, who preceded Pancoast as adjutant general, once was a full colonel and chief of staff of the 37th while it was training at Camp Shelby, Miss. He resigned to become adjutant general following death of Gilson D. Light, but re-entered the army after the United States began war with the Axis.

The Bird letter dated July 4th gave no indication where the 37th was stationed.

SHOWDOWN ON U. S. SALES TAX EXPECTED SOON

Taft Declares 'Spendings' Levy Would Be Same Thing But Worse .

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—The treasury's presentation of a "spendings" tax plan today promised an early showdown in the senate finance committee on proposals for a federal sales tax.

Sen. Robert A. Taft, R., O., asserting that the treasury plan was in effect a sales tax, said it lacked several of the advantages of the Orthodox retail sales levy. Consideration of the "spendings" tax—to be revealed during the day by Treasury General Counsel Randolph Paul—is expected to bring action on a definite sales tax plan by Taft, Sen. Harry F. Byrd, D., Va., or some other commitee member.

Meanwhile, Sen. John A. Danaher, R., Conn., revealed that a senate finance subcommittee headed by Sen. Bennett C. Clark, D., Mo., has been considering a "stamp assessment" proposal designed to bring the treasury up to $5,000,000,000 annually in cash receipts on top of the estimated $24,000,000,000 in tax revenue of the house-approved bill.

The "stamp assessment" proposal, Danaher said, is not a tax, but combines the principle of getting taxpayers more nearly current with their obligations to the treasury with a system of compulsory savings for individuals to be repaid in postwar years.

He said the proposal involved a 10 per cent "assessment" on the purchase price of any article at retail. The purchaser would receive stamps for the additional 10 per cent of the retail cost, which could be accumulated in albums as war stamps are now accumulated, and, when they total $25, exchanged for a personal savings bond which would be non-negotiable and non-interest bearing.

This special bond, Danaher said, could be used only in two ways: (1) To pay income taxes as they fall due; and (2) To be cashed in by the taxpayer after the war.

All America Knows Budweiser... but Few Know This

THE STORY OF BREAD
may well be called The Story of Civilization

Bread, the most venerable of prepared foods, has helped man, and man in turn has bettered the quality of his staff of life.

YEAST is the life of bread . . . and the story of yeast is the story of scientific research, uniform quality, mammoth production, modern refrigeration . . . and daily delivery to bakers in every city, town and village throughout the land . . . even by boat, by sled and by plane when other transportation is interrupted by floods and blizzards.

Anheuser-Busch is one of America's biggest sources of baker's yeast.

Year after year, we have striven with research and resources to better the methods and facilities for brewing Budweiser. To do this, a laboratory specializing in fermentology and nutrition was necessary. Discoveries made in the laboratory and in the plant have led to the development of products contributing to human necessity and progress. Some of these products would appear to have only a remote relationship to brewing, yet, they are the result of scientific research into many allied fields.

Endless research in making the world's leading beer has led to other products

VITAMINS, B COMPLEX—For manufacturers of pharmaceutical and food products. Our plant is one of the world's largest sources.

VITAMIN D—Anheuser-Busch produces enough of the basic material for Vitamin D to supply the entire American market.

CORN SYRUP—many millions of pounds annually for America's candy industry.

SYRUPS—for food, table and confectionery uses and special syrups for medicinal purposes.

STARCH—for food, textile, paper and other industries—millions of pounds annually.

VITAMINS FOR LIVESTOCK—We are America's biggest supplier of yeast vitamins used to fortify animal feeds.

REFRIGERATING EQUIPMENT—for retailers of frozen foods and ice cream the country over. This division is now working all-out on glider wing and fuselage assemblies for our Armed Forces.

DIESEL ENGINES—Adolphus Busch, founder of Anheuser-Busch, acquired the first rights to manufacture this revolutionary engine in America and thus started our great Diesel industry on its way.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 2, 1942.

Just what is it that America stands for? If she stands for one thing more than another, it is for the sovereignty of self-governing people, and her example, her assistance, her encouragement, has thrilled two continents in this western world with all those fine impulses which have built up human liberty on both sides of the water. She stands, therefore, as an example of independence, as an example of free institutions, and as an example of disinterested international action in the main tenets of justice.—(Woodrow Wilson.)

Making Ready for Labor Day

NEXT MONDAY'S observance of Labor day in Mansfield promises to be one of most impressive this city has ever experienced, with parade, speeches and other features designed to emphasize unity and patriotism.

Sponsored by the union council of the Congress of Industrial Organizations of Mansfield, invitations to participate have been accepted by American Federation of Labor unions and the celebration is designed to exemplify full accord of organized labor with the national war effort.

Elaborate preparations are being made for the parade, scheduled for 10 a. m. Monday and the floats are expected to be among the finest ever seen here. There will also be liberal interspersing of band music.

Military, patriotic, fraternal and civilian defense groups will participate in the parade, which is to be followed by a speaking program at Central park.

Afternoon and evening will be devoted to a program of sports and entertainment at North lake park, with all parade and contest prizes to be paid in War Savings Stamps or Bonds.

For those in participating unions whose work is not required in production of war materials, as well as for all people of this community who are free to observe next Monday as a holiday, this Labor day celebration will provide a welcome break from routine and will also serve to further reveal the fine spirit of accord that exists in Mansfield.

Foretaste of Destruction

THE BERLIN PRESS the other day published a novel and interesting piece of war news. Enemy bombers, it reported, during the previous night had attacked west, central and northeastern Germany. The attacks came evidently from Britain and Russia. In the former group there might have been some American planes.

Considerable damage was done. And this experience may serve as a gentle introduction to what Hitlerland may expect, in steadily growing intensity and power, from now on. Bomb-bearing planes will be coming simultaneously not only from the east and west, but also from the north and the south, pouring upon Germany such a deluge of destructive bombs that the supposedly safe Fatherland will be wrecked as it has wrecked so many innocent neighbors. It is a job that has to be done. And upon that wreckage may be reared the hope of a safe world hereafter.

Rental Typewriters Called In

TYPEWRITERS that have been out on rental are being called in, on government order, with September 15 as the final date. This order applies to all standard models under seven years old.

The rental plan, in preference to buying outright, has been in vogue with many individuals and offices, and the change-over will be quite difficult in some cases, as only older standard models and used portables will be available for purchase or rental.

There has thus far been no information from Washington as to the extent to which government officials and agencies have been called upon to sacrifice surplus typewriters, or to have used machines rebuilt for further service, the only information being from a commentator who says: "It's hard to figure where they're going to put any more typewriters."

Detroit Warns Job-Seekers

DETROIT is again being disturbed by the influx of many job-seekers, who are trooping into the city without any idea of where they are going to live—or how.

Worried by the onrushing flood of itinerant "workers," the Detroit News points out: "Belief held by many of these folk that employment at fabulous wages is obtainable as soon as the pilgrim reaches town, is doomed to be shattered."

Prospective hunters for employment are advised that they should first get in touch with likely employers and, if advised that a job is waiting, then take steps to find housing for themselves and their families.

The Detroit situation is not unlike that existing in many other cities engaged in big scale war production and the advice sent out from there provides a common-sense formula for all workers who may be attracted by the lure of temporary fabulous wages in war industries.

When Old-Timers Return

OLD-TIMERS felt themselves on the map again the other day when headlines on the sporting pages once more blazoned forth the names of Walter Johnson and Babe Ruth. Retired for years, they appeared briefly at an army welfare benefit in the New York Yankee stadium. No baseball lover has forgotten their feats. Thousands must have paid their way in hope of seeing these feats again.

They were not disappointed. Johnson still had his easy buggy-whip throw, and the Babe delivered two crashing drives that enabled fathers to tell their young sons, "That's how he used to do it."

They are portly now, both of them. Johnson dabbles in politics, and the Babe looks on baseball from without. But like Cy Young, who in his 70's now and then takes part in benefit games, they proved that they do exist, and dreams of seeing them again sometimes come true.

Reaching the point of building more ships than the Axis is sinking may justify cheers—but not loud ones. Those will be reserved for the day the submarine menace is wiped out.

Unheard remark—"The chances are 50,000 to 1 that my name won't be called, so I'll buy War Savings Stamps instead of bank night insurance."

Oddity: A Nebraska judge sent a woman to jail because she refused to talk.

A dime will buy a War Savings Stamp.

TROUBLE WITH THE "I" TEST

Filipino Considers Possibilities

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON—Could the war collapse of Britain and Russia imaginably be otherwise than a 100 per cent calamity to the United States, for all time to come?

The answer is that it could imaginably be otherwise.

I know its imaginable, because Dr. Vincente Villamin, a distinguished Filipino visitor in this country assures me that he's able to imagine it, and while I think it requires a pretty active imagination to do so, he's a Filipino some of whose opinions are very highly respected in official Washington.

When Uncle Sam agreed several years ago to grant independence to the Philippines in the middle 1940's their native inhabitants generally were delighted. There was an element, however, which had its doubts.

This group questioned the economic desirability, from the islands' own standpoint, of a complete severance of relations with the U. S. A. It also was apprehensive of what presently did follow—an invasion of the archipelago by the Japanese.

This little coterie commissioned Dr. Villamin, notable as a Filipino lawyer, writer and politician, to oppose fulfillment of the program, at least in its entirety, for the divorce to take place at this time.

The doc was here when the war started.

Stymied By War.

The Jap assault on his home islands naturally lent a deal of cogency to that detail or his argument. Nevertheless, it queered his mission in Washington, and yet he couldn't go back to Manila, with Nippon in control there. At latest advices he was in Los Angeles, and it was thence that I heard from him relative to conceivable European developments and their application to the Far Eastern situation, in which he's especially interested.

"There are," writes he, two possibilities in Europe—I'm not calling 'em probabilities—that might develop and that, to the average American, would seem to place this nation at a disadvantage. These possibilities are the cessation of Russo-German hostilities and the successful invasion of Britain by the Nazis.

"I maintain that realization of these two possibilities wouldn't necessarily be as disadvantageous as many people think.

"The collapse of Russia and Britain would make Germany supreme in Europe. It would be logical to assume that Germany would proceed to consolidate her position and co-ordinate her regime on the continent. She probably would say to America, 'If you want to continue the fighting, come over here and do it.'

"Due to transportation's inadequacies and the lack of landing places, America won't be in a position, for some time, to undertake a full-scale European invasion. Nor will the time be ripe for Germany to push operations into the Western hemisphere. Hence there'll be a lull, or temporary stalemate between America and Germany.

Germany Would Applaud.

"During the stalemate, which may be likened to conditions during the Thirty Years' war, when technical hostilities prevailed, but with no real fighting, America will find herself face to face with only one enemy—Japan. Consequently this country will be in a position to concentrate all its power on the task of knocking out the Japs.

"Secretly that'll please the Germans, whose basic interests conflict racially, economically and politically with Nippon's.

"Japan being smashed, America, with the help of the conquered European nations, will be in a position to resume active belligerency with Germany and settle the causes of conflict between the two."

I don't offer this sketch by Dr. Villamin as a suggestion for a safe bet. It's an original angle, nevertheless.

There's a modicum of theoretical logic to his reasoning, too.

On this date in 1798, the Constitutional congress, at its first session, enacted a law whose object was "to establish" the Treasury department." Alexander Hamilton was appointed first head of the department by President Washington.

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Lanny Ross is the sort of singer who bats out his own broadcasts, then, when he's off the air, faces the audience and says, "Come on, gang, now we haven't got anything to worry about. We can relax. Let's have some fun."

The guy simply hates to stop singing. I saw this happen at a benefit broadcast for the Father Duffy Canteen, and when it was over Lanny cried, "Okay, now we're going to have some real fun"—and he led the mob in mass renditions of "Deep in the Heart of Texas" and "Jingle Jangle Jingle."

Later I asked him about it, and he said, "I'm not happy when the going gets stuffy. I like it informal, in shirt sleeves."

ASIDE from his duties as master of ceremonies for one of the big weekly broadcasts, he kicks about the country from Army camp to Army camp, singing to the boys before he becomes one of them himself. Lanny is 3-A.

"What amazes me is the tab these high ranking officers keep on their men. I mean, I am astonished at how much the officers know about the men, their individual talents and aims. One general, who has 15,000 men under his command, turned to a private who was passing, called him over and introduced him by name. He said, 'Mr. Ross, this boy has written a great song.' Imagine a general taking the trouble to learn that among his men was a budding composer.

"On another trip I arrived with my tuxedo so rumpled that it looked like a fatigue uniform. I like to sing in evening clothes when I face the men, because they are tired of uniforms, and anyway, when a man is in a dinner jacket he is strictly on his own.

"But my jacket was so wrinkled I knew I couldn't wear it as it was. Fortunately, a hostess learned of my plight and provided me with an electric iron. What happened to the tux? Nothing. It was the swellest pressing job you ever saw."

"GOING to army camps is a magnificent experience," Lanny Ross believes. "Scratch an entertainment officer and you'll find a singer," he said. "You're always met by entertainment officers and they usually turn out to be men who know all about show business and can anticipate any artist's needs. They know that the piano is in good order. They take care of you and see that everything goes as it should."

What time is left from the broadcast and the Army shows are spent with his cows. Ross is a farmer at heart, he swears, and pines for the alfalfa and the corn. All available time is spent on his country place.

Everyday Poem

—By GEORGE ELLISTON

The Genesis Plan.

She liked to read her Bible, how
The Creator had worked,
So neatly and so orderly,
Nor once His duties shirked.

So much this day and so much that,
Report said. He would do
And on the seventh rested Him,
His mighty effort through.

She read with satisfaction for
She worked the self-same way,
A task for every hour, a plan
For each and every day.

Japan's Military System Must Be Crushed Before Peace Comes

—By DE WITT MACKENZIE

JOSEPH C. GREW'S call for the utter destruction of Japanese militarism has stated in grim, blunt terms the nature of the unprecedented task that lies before us.

It's a declaration that haunts the imagination, especially coming as it does from one who spent a decade in Nippon as our ambassador.

What he says of Japan applies also very exactly to Germany. Here's the way he puts it:

"That Japanese military machine and military caste and military system must be utterly crushed, their credit and predominance must be utterly broken, for the future safety and welfare of civilization and humanity. Let's put it in a nutshell: There is not sufficient room in the area of the Pacific ocean for a peaceful America, for any and all of the peace-loving United Nations, and a swashbuckling Japan."

How are we to carry out this elimination of militarism and the remoulding of the minds of whole nations? Hitler is trying to achieve this end in some countries by wholesale massacre of recalcitrant grown-ups and the taking over of the training of the children. That's the sort of thing we are fighting to destroy.

Well, it's impossible at this stage to work out how they will proceed. The consensus of Allied statesmen and observers, however, seems to point generally in this direction:

Japan and Germany must be stripped of every vestige of military equipment—land, air and water.

Hitler and all the other militaristic leaders of both countries must be permanently removed from the picture.

Then the Allied nations must establish military control of Japan and Germany—actually police them with troops.

Then we must begin the long and arduous process of eliminating the militaristic idea from the minds of the people by education.

It will be a colossal job, for we shall encounter the resentment of conquered peoples. Still, it can be done if it is approached in the right spirit.

Everything will depend on how we approach this problem.

Making Ready to Attack Siberia

—By J. C. OESTREICHER

PREMIER HIDEKI TOJO has cleared the decks for a Japanese attack on Siberia by booting out of office the last non-militarist in his cabinet—Foreign Minister Shigenor: Togo.

Conviction mounted in well-informed London quarters that this new and long-anticipated Japanese act of aggression is imminent. Observers recalled Adolf Hitler's speech Monday appealing for winter war contributions in which he promised the German people that their allies in the far east would not permit the reich to be defeated.

Sheer military necessity apparently prompted the fuehrer to make this promise. For his armies continued to run into all sorts of difficulties in Russia on the third anniversary of that infamous September 1 in 1939 when Hitler started the whole war with his invasion of Poland.

An official broadcast from Tokyo simply said that Togo had resigned "for personal reasons" and handed his duties over to Tojo, who now becomes foreign minister, war minister, minister for home affairs and premier.

The important part of this development lies in the fact that Tojo, whose ambition is nothing less than world conquest, was eliminated a man who conceivably could have been a moderating factor. Shigenori Togo is a diplomat by instinct and by training. He served in Washington, Berlin and Moscow and had to his credit a series of agreements which put an end to years of Manchuria Russo-Japanese frontier warfare.

London advices said that Togo had been spending his time recently in attempting to persuade Soviet Russia to demilitarize Vladivostok and other Russian far eastern bases, which of course would have facilitated the Japanese attack whenever it may be made.

Togo failed, these dispatches added, so Togo's usefulness came to an end and Tojo took over unhampered—Tojo a man unhampered by the slightest inhibition of diplomatic niceties.

From Moscow there was no immediate reaction to the change. But Soviet officials for months, while adhering strictly to their neutrality pact with Japan, have given ample assurances of Russia's ability and readiness to meet attack from any quarter.

Watching Trends

—By JOHN GROVER

WASHINGTON — As we all know, the war isn't fought alone by men with guns. It's fought as well by the men and women at home. But that isn't all either. It's being fought by the nation's youth.

This is the story of what one large segment of our youth—240,000 members of the Future Farmers of America—is doing in the ways open to it, some of them small ways, some of them of not inconsiderable importance.

F.F.A. war activity takes four main lines: (1) Buying War Bonds and stamps, (2) raising food, (3) salvaging war materials, (4) repairing and reconditioning farm machinery.

HERE are extracts from a few of the thousands of reports coming in from F.F.A.'s 7,500 local chapters to national headquarters:

1. Buying War Bonds and stamps—

Rison, Ark.: "A total often $25 bonds has been purchased by four of the boys. Three other members have purchased defense stamps."

Sargent, Colo.: "Due to the shortage of rubber, the chapter voted not to visit the National Western Stock Show this year, and to turn the money into Defense Saving Bonds."

2. Raising food—

Hoopa, Calif.: "Hoopa Future Farmers are practicing a 'live at home' program. Stock carots and beets have been planted in the chapter orchard for pig feed. Boys have transplanted strawberries, planted a defense garden, worked the vineyard and a three-acre field corn plot planted for hog and chicken feed. The chapter has given away hundreds of tomato and cabbage plants for victory garden plantings and hundreds of grape cuttings to Indian farmers."

Jefferson, Ia.: "F.F.A. members are raising 'Victory Pigs.' All boys with sow and litter projects have designated one pig as a 'Victory Pig.' The proceeds from the sale of these 'Victory Pigs' are to be used to purchase U. S. defense bonds and stamps."

* * *

IOTA, La.: "The Iota F.F.A. chapter, 140 strong, has launched a 'Food for Fredeom Contest.' The member who does the most toward increasing and improving poultry, garden, dairy cattle, meat, animals and fruits on his home farm will receive a $25 U. S. defense bond."

3. Salvaging war materials—

Kismet, Kas.: "We plan to salvage old machinery that is not usable any more."

Shorthorn, Va.: "The chapter elected two captains and chose sides. The main object was to see which team could get the most scrap iron. The teams have sold 5,200 pounds of scrap iron."

4. Repairing and reconditioning farm machinery—

Hernando, Fla.: "During the shop program 185 tools were rehandled and put back into use, 18 plows were repaired, 18 wheelbarrows, five screen doors, 32 lawn chairs, five bee gums and a trailer for collecting tools were made."

Canton, S. D.: "We have made a survey of the machinery repair needs on the farms and are beginning a repair program in the farm shop."

Timely Editorial

Penalty for Speeding.

A few years ago a good many judges used to sentence particularly reckless speeders to visit the morgue and see the results of such wanton carelessness. Nowadays they might order them to spend a few hours in the office of a tire rationing board.

About the only people who seem to realize that the rubber situation is serious are the board members. They are plenty tough, according to reports from all parts of the country. Motorists, even defense workers, who have tried to get new tires or retreads have learned by experience that they not only have to have a good story—they have to prove it.

Drivers still whizzing over the highways at pre-war speed could learn a lot from a visit to the men who judge when and why a new tire is essential to the war effort which, after all, is the only thing that counts these days.—Canton Repository.

A Farmer's Diary

Vacant Room

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

I STOPPED in at a farm home casually, to inquire the distance and direction of a village. I saw four stars in the front window. One was gold.

A woman of about 50 with gray hair, neatly dressed in a dark house frock and a light checked apron, answered my knock. I smelled the pungent odor of pickles simmering on the kitchen stove.

When I made my inquiry, she was not sure she knew definitely enough to direct me. She invited me inside, and hurried to get the information from her husband, who was in the garden. Soon both came in. He was tall and wiry, but showed the effects of too constant toil.

After he gave me the information desired, I wondered how large a farm he had. "A hundred and sixty acres of good farm land," he said, "and my wife and I are tryin' to do it alone."

"But you're working too hard," I suggested, "and you go through life only once."

"Well, you see," he reflected, "we started farming by renting these 80 acres the buildings are on. When our four boys grew up and seemed to like the farm, we bought the 80 and leased the other 80 without any buildings. We got along just fine until this war came along . . ."

"Now," said his wife tremulously, "we know the oldest boy will never come back. He was lost in the Java sea. The next one belongs to the signal corps, in Egypt; the third is in Australia, and the youngest is in England. We haven't heard from any of 'em for eight weeks. Even though we're awful tired, we find time to read the latest war news."

"And I tell you, when you piece it together — we got us a world map, so we could understand the geography better — it's nothin' much but bad news we been gettin'," interposed her husband.

"Come upstairs," they suggested, almost in concert. I went with them to a low, spacious corner room where two wide, clean beds stood along opposite walls. A picture of Knute Rockne, on the wall, a calendar, with Holstein cattle grazing, and at one end of the room a big world map, with the white stars in three places, and one of gold upon the blue of ocean. We all stood gazing—proudly, with moist eyes.

"I claim," said the father, turning to me with great earnestness, "That it's better to send our boys than to lose our land. Some ways of living would be worse than even death."

TELL STORY OF STARVATION IN OCCUPIED CHINA

Mansfield Missionaries Had Plenty to Eat, But Others Suffered Hardships.

(Editor's Note: This is the second of two articles concerning the experiences of Rev. and Mrs. Charles Matti who arrived in Mansfield Monday after being interned for six months by the Japanese in China where they were missionaries at the outbreak of the war. The first article appeared yesterday.)

By ESTHER SMITH

Although they personally experienced no privation from the lack of food during the six months they were interned in their missionary compound in Nanking by the Japanese, Rev. and Mrs. Charles Matti, missionaries for the Society of Friends, were unable to say as much for fellow missionaries in other parts of China or the Chinese people in general.

The missionaries are resting at the home of Rev. Matti's sister, Mrs. E. C. Jenkins, 426 West Third street. They reached Mansfield Monday to make their home here for the duration.

"Some miles from Nanking we had missionary friends who were forced to eat sweet potato vines because food was so scarce," Mrs. Matti said, "but it was the Chinese people who were the real sufferers. People fell dead from starvation in the streets of Nanking.

"But we have no sad stories to tell about ourselves. Friends brought us flour, meats of all kinds and so many eggs that we had to give some away. One wealthy family sent us a dinner once a week and we had been assured that we would be taken care of.

"Food prices in China were staggering. The value of Chinese money has decreased until it means practically nothing as shown by prices now asked in Nanking in comparison to prices prevailing in 1937."

At that time, Mrs. Matti pointed out, Chinese flour could be purchased for $2.85 a bag, while now the cost is $112, equivalent to $6 in American money. She quoted other prices such as $700, in Chinese money, for 125 pounds of rice; $1,000 for a bed net, and $2,500 for a baby carriage.

Coal is $800 a ton although Rev. Matti said statistics showed that China has enough coal to last the republic for 1,005 years.

When word came to the missionaries that they were to evacuate the compound and return to America, "it was a great surprise," said the pastor.

This time, as before, the missionaries "were fortunate." They were permitted to sell whatever belongings they could and list the remaining equipment with Japanese officials who said that "it would be cared for until after the war."

"At first we were told we could take 80 pounds of clothing with us, but this amount was increased until when we finally left we had two steamer trunks and a half-dozen pieces of luggage," the missionary said.

Before preparing to evacuate the compound the missionaries had asked Japanese officers if they might stay and continue their private counsel among the Chinese as they had been doing but the Japanese shook their heads in the negative.

"Apparently they wanted to get rid of the foreigners so that they wouldn't become dependent upon the authorities," Rev. Matti said.

The two-month trip home around two-thirds of the globe as the Conte Verda and later the Gripsholm zig-zagged their course is a story in itself.

After the foreigners were evacuated from Nanking they were first taken to Shanghai. Here they were stationed for two weeks at the Columbia Country club, a former American institution, which was topped by an American Eagle but flew the Japanese flag.

The Mattis did not lose their sense of humor while living in the face of uncertainty and they chuckled frequently over some of the incidents of the trip that would have been even more amusing if the implications had not been so tragic.

The club was staffed by an American committee and "the evacuees were fed American cracked wheat and powdered milk that had been confiscated from a Red Cross boat." The food was "fairly good" although there was no butter. "Meals included one serving of meat a day while breakfast always included either eggs or pancakes and usually fruit. Children under 12 all had milk."

In Shanghai the missionaries had the freedom of the city and carried no special identification card. "Conditions may be bad in Nanking but they are much worse in Shanghai," the missionaries said.

Sailing day came June 29 when 644 passengers boarded the Italian vessel, Conte Verde, for the first lap of the trip home. "Here again," they said, "conditions were good, in fact better than on the Gripsholm for they were less crowded."

"We were permitted to hold regular Bible classes," said Mrs. Matti, "while many of the ship's passengers gave lectures. An Italian band played four concerts daily."

Life aboard ship was without incident excepting once on the Gripsholm, to which they had transferred at Lourenco Marques, Portuguese East Africa, the last of July.

Then they had sighted a burning vessel. "We circled it twice to make sure that nobody was in sight and in need of help," said the missionary.

The Mattis, who have spent 17 years in China, most of it in Nanking, arrived in Jersey City early last week. But they "are going back as soon as the war is over and are permitted to return."

Asked if he felt that the show of friendship by the Japanese officers at the compound prior to Pearl Harbor had anything to do with the near-normal living conditions of the family during internment the missionary replied "it might have had."

The couple well remember their last night in Nanking. They were given permission to attend a dinner with 12 other friends at the Presbyterian compound. "It was the sixth-month anniversary of the beginning of hostilities between America and Japan," said Rev. Matti, adding, "but I guess the Japanese didn't think of that."

No Train Space?--Pvt. Doe Has Your Seat

If you've recently been exasperated at not being able to get your exact Pullman accommodations, this is to inform you that Private John Doe, U. S. A., had first claim to your seat. Since the first of the year over 2,500,000 doughboys have been riding the cushions (Pullmans) because your Uncle Samuel feels that giving them first-class transportation pays big dividends in health and morale. Above, soldiers are seen on a typical transcontinental haul, relaxing in comfort, joking with a porter and arriving at their destination without fatigue. So, remember this huge job the railroads are doing and next time your tickets are cancelled, you might say with every good grace, "O. K., Soldier, after you."

ONTARIO CHURCH SCENE OF PRETTY WEDDING

Miss Molly Ruth Remy Becomes Bride Sunday of Donald E. Rader; Couple to Live In Cleveland.

BEFORE the candlelighted and flower-banked altar of the Ontario Community church, Miss Molly Ruth Remy became the bride of Donald E. Rader at 7:30 o'clock Sunday evening. The impressive service was performed by an uncle of the bride, Rev. Roy B. Leedy of Napoleon.

Miss Vivien Miller of this city played nuptial selections on the piano. In addition to the traditional wedding marches, she presented "Intermezzo," "Indian Love Call," and "Love's Old Sweet Song." The latter was played during the first part of the single ring ceremony. Miss Mary Helen Bowers of Ontaria sang "I Love You Truly" and "O Promise Me."

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence E. Remy of Butler. She was given in marriage by her father. Miss Remy's bridal gown was of white rayon lace and rayon marquisette fashioned with a tucked lace bodice, sweetheart neckline and long, full skirt. Her fingertip veil was of rayon net trimmed with a wide band of lace which matched the lace of the gown's bodice. The veil was attached to a tiara of gardenias and carnations. Red roses and baby's breath formed the bride's shower bouquet.

Miss Adeline Remy, sister of the new Mrs. Rader, was maid of honor. She wore a yellow gown like the bride's in style and material. In her hair she had a tiara of harmonizing carnations and she carried a semi-shower bouquet of pink roses and white gladioli.

The bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. D. Rader, of near Mansfield, had his brother, Burdell Rader, as best man. David Kreisher of this city, cousin of the bride, was usher.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Remy wore a navy blue floral print dress with a corsage of gardenias. A black and white crepe dress was worn by Mrs. Raler, who also had a gardenia corsage.

After the ceremony a reception for relatives and close friends was held at the Rader home. For that occasion the bride wore an orchid corsage. A two-course supper was served at a long table decorated with a tiered wedding cake.

The former Miss Remy was graduated from Butler high school and later attended the School of Cosmetology in Atlanta, Ga. She has been a government employe at the Tappan Stove company. Mr. Rader is a graduate of Ontario high school and formerly was employed by the Tappan tSove company. He is now a machinist at the Cleveland Pneumatic Tool company in Cleveland. Mr. and Mrs. Rader will make their home in that city

HOROSCOPE

For Thursday, September 3.

Some brilliant stroke, attended by excitement or peculiar adventure, may be the astral means of circumventing strange or adverse powers threatening the day with difficulty and danger. Impetuous as well as tempestuous acts may precipitate not only disagreeable situations but lead to personal or violent experiences as well. With the higher forces at the helm, and diversion of turbulent impulses and emotions toward the creative, romantic or social side of the affairs, there might be excellent accomplishment and real joy.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year in which their individual ingenuity, creative abilities and brilliant intellect may serve to swerve difficult, obnoxious and dangerous situations from doing much lasting harm. Against the fine mental resources there is a tendency to tempestuous, rash, malicious and impetuous words and deeds which might precipitate real trouble and regret.

A child born on this day, while forceful and energetic, with excellent mentality and worthy ambitions, yet may be swept away by tempestuous, reckless and over-enthusiastic impulses. It may have social and romantic leanings and could find much joy in life through self-restraints.

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

I did not answer Noel's question on the instant, and he interpreted correctly the thought behind my hesitation.

"I don't want to quarrel with her, or to accuse her of anything," he said. "Instead, I want to apologize to her before going back to our suite.

"You have been very kind and tactful," he went on, "in your intimation that I might stay if I wished. But I am very sure your father wishes me to leave, and that is my wish too. But if I may, I will wait as patiently as I can in our suite until your father dismisses Mary."

His tone was like that of some humble laborer, waiting for his wife to come home from her charring, but I sternly suppressed the amused smile with which I usually react to Noel's occasional displays of heroic martyrdom. Heritages from his famous father are his tendency to be theatrical, and his rare but terrible rages. Yet he has also inherited common sense and poise from his gentle mother, long since liberated by death from the unhappy lot of an unloved but, at the same time, cherished wife.

Mary Anxious.

"I will call Mary," I said quickly, and hurried to the bedroom door. Surely if ever a young man had provocation for rage and a feeling of martyrdom, Noel had.

Mary looked at me anxiously as I closed the door and gave her Noel's message.

"Will he swallow me at one gulp, or chew me slowly?" she asked, but her eyes gave the lie to the very flippancy of her words.

"On the contrary," I said, "I think he is in a very tractable mood. Just be careful what you say to him or promise him. Tell him you can leave here very shortly, and get him to go over to his suite as quickly as possible. I know father wishes to see you again briefly before you follow."

"Isn't it great to be so popular?" Mary gibed with a wry grin. "Shall I give you the office when Noel goes—if he goes? He may decide on a sit-down strike, you know."

Goes to Talk With Noel.

"I don't think there is any danger of that," I told her. "He said he was going to stay here only long enough for a short talk with you. Yes, let me know as soon as he goes.

"I'll do that little thing," she said, in the same muted tones in which we had been talking. Then she went into the living room, carefully closing the door, and I settled myself to await her return.

In a few minutes she came back into the bedroom slowly, and with an air of utter weariness and dejection threw herself down on my bed, looking up at me with worried eyes.

"Was it so bad?" I asked her at last.

"It was, and it wasn't," she said. "I thought he was going to be in a blind rage at me, but instead he was very tender and understanding. But he's simply seething about my ever seeing Redfield again except on the stage, and I think he's about ready to put his foot down and say I must leave the play unless Steve is thrown out on his ear.

"You see," she hurried on, "this last stunt has been the tinder that finally has lighted the fire. He has stood for all my trekking around with Steve, gritted his teeth and borne it for the good of the cause. But this last Gadarene swine performance of Steve's has made him see so red that I don't know whether even you can do anything with him."

"The Authority on Authorities"

YOU MUST TRUST HIM

Any early bid by a tricky opponent may be a psychic. But, after enough strength has been shown by him on his play to early tricks to prove he had a pretty fair amount of strength, you can usually trust him then to hold any outstanding card or cards which might be necessary to have made his original bid thoroughly sound. Counting on him for that holding can sometimes be the guide which enables you to make an otherwise difficult contract.

South's opener was the club Q to the singleton K, and East saw at once that he would have to guess both red suits correctly, as the heart A was a sure loser. Depending on South for what his bid indicated, he led to the heart Q, the A taking. The club 10 came back, to the A, whereupon East finessed the heart 10 and 9, then scored the heart K.

When three top spades then brought discards of the club 2 and 4 from South, East counted up. Knowing South to have the club J from his leads of the Q and 10, he held originally five clubs. He also had shown he had five hearts originally and a singleton spade. Consequently he had two diamonds for his remaining cards. Further reflection indicated that, unless his opening bid was shaded very badly, he needed the diamond Q for it.

So, playing South for a doubleton Q, East dropped it with the diamond A and K, and took the last two tricks with his 10 and 9.

CHAPTER XIV

Guy strode past Paul and Amy and the trembling Margaret and flung open the front door. The night was pitch black; near the open door dripping shrubbery bent under the force of the wind.

"Daphne wouldn't go out there," he said turning back. "Are you sure you haven't seen her since 4:30, Margaret? Did you try my room? She likes to go in there when she thinks no one sees her . . . Maybe she's asleep somewhere."

Margaret shook her head. She was blubbering now. "She came in from the garden. You'd said she could walk to the end of the path twice. She came and wanted to know if she couldn't go again. And I said no. Then she asked if she could go upstairs and take off her rubbers and raincoat. I told her she could. I was busy with canapes and Miss Tudor likes her to wait on herself. She asked if she could see Miss Tudor. I told her she couldn't. Then she wanted to see her mother—"

Margaret stopped. A gleam of hope came into her eyes. "Why, there's one place we didn't go."

She pointed to the door of the room where four hours earlier Paul had thrown Frani on the davenport like a sack of potatoes.

But already Guy had opened that door. For a moment he stood on the threshold and Amy saw his shoulders stiffen. Then he went inside.

They heard him say, "Frani." Then louder, "Frani."

Then he said loudly as though he were talking to a deaf person, "Have you seen Daphne?"

Frani's voice said mushily, "I told her—not to bother me. I told her—"

Her voice became inaudible. Again Guy shouted "Frani! . . . Frani! . . . Where's Daphne? . . . Listen, Frani. Have you seen Daphne?"

"Don't know where Daphne is. Told her not to bother . . . Go 'way."

Guy came back, closing the door behind him with angry finality. "She doesn't know anything."

But Amy was remembering. "Is her raincoat here?" she asked.

* * *

Guy followed her upstairs and stood tense beside her while she opened the closet door. The little red raincoat was not there, nor the red umbrella.

"Then she did go out again," Guy said, his voice sick with terror.

Amy was remembering again "She said she wanted to go to Paul's studio. She'd been teasing all day. She was determined."

The walk along the top of the hill seemed endless. Guy led the way with a flashlight, Paul and Amy struggled behind him through the mud and fallen leaves. Once in awhile Guy would turn the flashlight on the path and Amy knew he was looking for small footprints though if there had been any the rain would have washed them away.

At length they reached the head of the ravine and Guy turned the light down upon the precipitous slope showing the bare, gnarled roots of trees and the muddy little torrents splashing over them.

"She wouldn't have gone this far," Paul said.

"But we have to look," Guy said through set teeth.

Then, stopping suddenly, he whistled, a call like a Bob White, curiously sweet and startling in the dark and the rain.

"That's the way he calls Daphne when they're playing," Paul whispered as he and Amy followed Guy around the edge of the ravine.

The studio porch was empty. The doors were locked. "I'll look inside for luck," Paul said. "And while I'm doing it you two might go up to the third floor. Here's the key."

The porch at the back of the third floor was empty. They unlocked the door and turned on the studio light. No one there either.

Standing under the wrought iron lantern in the entrance, with drops of water dripping from the brim of his hat and drops like beads of perspiration on his face, Guy said, "I'd forgotten that I'm a rich man."

"It wouldn't be that," Amy assured him gently.

He shuddered. "Don't you read the papers!"

"Perhaps we ought to try the place where we all came down the other day," she suggested.

Descending the steps Guy tried to whistle again but his lips wouldn't pucker. Impulsively Amy's hand went out to his. He took it and held it tightly.

Somehow he managed to whistle again. And this time from somewhere in the rain came a faint little chirp.

They found Daphne under a bush halfway up the cliff. Her eyes were swollen and the little face was speckled with red from crying. The red raincoat was plastered with mud. Her cap was gone and her black hair hung in dripping rings. She glowered like a fierce lion cub when the light found her. Then she screamed, a piteous little wail, "Daddy. Daddy!"

She started to get up, but fell back instantly. They saw that one leg turned grotesquely under her like a rag doll's.

Guy passed the flashlight to Paul and, stooping over, picked her up very carefully.

Once as they plodded across the ridge toward the house, Paul happened to turn the light upon Guy. Amy saw the tenderness in his eyes as he looked into the wet little face on his shoulder She thought she had never seen so beautiful a look in a man's face. She forgot her own terror for Daphne, forgot the plump leg dangling so strangely limp, forgot even Paul walking beside her. For the first time there was no thrill in his nearness. No wish that he would reach out and touch her.

Daphne kept talking fitfully. "I was naughty. Daddy . . . But I was mad. And so I ran away . . . I wanted to go to Uncle Paul's studio. And Tudor wouldn't let me go . . . Are you mad at me?"

She put up a wet little hand and touched his cheek. "I say, Daddy. Are you mad at me?"

"No, darling," Guy choked. "I'm not mad."

Suddenly she screamed· "My leg hurts. You're holding me the wrong way."

Then she said querilously, "Is Tudor mad at me?"

Amy said "No," over Guy's shoulder.

"They wouldn't let me see Tudor. And I was mad . . . I ran away. I fell down the cliff, and I couldn't get up. My leg wouldn't work . . . I went to sleep . . . And you whistled."

She was silent for awhile, then she said, "Is mother mad at me?"

Guy stood still in the rain. "What?"

"I went in to see her. And I tried to wake her up. I told her I was going to Uncle Paul's studio. But she said 'Go away' and went to sleep again . . . And I was mad some more."

* * *

Guy turned his face away so that none of them could see it.

The big house was ablaze with light. They were met at the side door by Marcia and Margaret. Amy didn't wonder at Marcia's being there. She had forgotten that Marcia was supposed to be in Lousville.

In an amazingly short time Daphne was in her bright blue and red bed, her small face as white as the linen pillow. There was a nurse, young, starched efficient. They called her Miss Bolton. And two doctors.

"The little fat older one's Dr. Deshler, the child specialist," Margaret told Amy as she handed her the wet clothes they had cut off Daphne. "And the big blond young one—that's Dr. Ames the bone specialist."

Then there was a time when they all waited in the playroom, Margaret and Amy and Paul and Marcia.

When the nurse came out of Daphne's bedroom Paul questioned her and she said, "A broken hip."

Then Daphne uttered a piercing scream.

"Gosh, it cuts your heart in two," Paul said.

He didn't look at Marcia when he spoke. He looked at Amy.

After awhile Guy came out. His face was pale and still wet. He too looked at Amy. "A broken hip," he said. "Dr. Ames has set it and he's putting the cast on. He says it's not a complicated break but she'll be in bed for a long time."

Then Frani dragged herself in and leaned against the wall, her suit a mass of wrinkles, her hair in a tangled dark mat over her shoulders.

"Well," she demanded with a sort of drowsy sarcasm, "what's this, a party?"

Guy didn't say a word. But the look he gave her was like a blow.

Slowly she stood erect, the drowsiness vanishing, "Where's Daphne?" she said sharply.

In reply Guy opened the door into the adjoining room. For an instant he let her see the white lights about Daphne's bed, the white uniform of the nurse, the white coats of the doctors, the white face on the pillow. Then he closed the door and stood in front of it.

Frani sprang forward. "What do you mean?" she cried, terrified. "Let me go in there. What's happened to her?"

"She has a broken hip," Guy said. "Miss Tudor and Paul and I found her—"

"Let me in there," Frani demanded furiously.

Guy held his arm across the door, talking as though she had not interrupted, "—in the ravine in the rain. She'd been there for two hours." He spoke slowly now, driving the words in like spikes. "ever since you told her to go away and let her go out in the rain."

Frani passed her hand over her eyes as though she were trying to brush away a fog.

"Don't you remember?" Guy said. "She came in to see you and you told her to go away. You told her not to bother you . . . Oh well, go on in." He stepped aside. "You can't do her any harm now. But don't do anything to frighten her."

Without a word Frani entered Daphne's room, closing the door softly behind her.

ASSERTS NAZIS EXTERMINATING OTHER NATIONS

Ambassador Declares Hitler Orders All Poles Killed By Year 1950.

NEW YORK—(U.P.)— Germany's plans for extermination of other nations are not mere theories but actually are being put into effect, Jan Chiechanowski, Polish ambassador to the United States, said today at an overseas press club luncheon.

He joined with Harold Butler, British Minister in Washington, in commemorating the third anniversary of the outbreak of the war.

German "slave drivers" in Poland, the ambassador said, have admitted that "they are instructed by their fuehrer Hitler to see to it that by the year 1950 there shall not be one Polish soul in the areas at present placed under their authority."

It is an application of the principles of Werner Best, head of the gestapo's "legal" department, who has proclaimed, Ciechanowski said, that "historical experience has shown that the destruction and elimination of a foreign nationality is not in the least contrary to the laws of life, provided that such destruction and elimination are complete."

"We must realize," he said, "that Germany's declared plans for the extermination of other nations are no mere theories. They are daily being put into practice, and every day, every hour, every minute, sounds the death knell of nations and races."

Butler asserted that there is nothing left but to "fight to the death" the renewal of the "old German claim that right was might."

British and American ideals of peace and freedom, he said, have been "confronted once more by the German ideal of violence and conquest, the contempt for the Christian faith and its gospel of love and charity, the subjugation first of Europe and then of humanity by the master-race glorifying in its barbarity."

MANSFIELDERS ESCAPE SERIOUS INJURY IN 180-FOOT PLUNGE

A Mansfield man and his wife were back home today recuperating from an experience that miraculously left them alive after their automobile plunged 180 feet down a barren hillside near Pennington Gap, Va.

Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Simmons, 55 Chestnut street, occupants of the car, were brought home in an ambulance Saturday night by a nephew, Robert Foos of Bellevue, who is in the undertaking business in that city. Both Mr. and Mrs. Simmons had been patients in Lee General hospital at Pennington Gap since the accident Aug. 23.

They escaped with no bones broken but both suffered several bruises from which it will take them some time to recover.

The couple was returning from a day's visit with their son, Sgt. Harold E. Simmons at Highpoint Airport in Greensboro, N. C. It had been raining, the highway was slippery and the Simmons' sedan, started to skid to the edge of the road, Simmons was unable to control it.

The car "rolled over and over," Simmons said, until it finally stopped in an upright position. Both Simmons and his wife were unable to crawl out of the doors and help was not long coming as other motorists had seen the car leave the road.

DEMOCRATS TO CONVENE SOON

O'Donnell Says Executive Committee To Meet and Organize Next Week.

Acting Prosecutor John C. O'Donnell, Richland county Democratic executive chairman, said yesterday he would call an organization meeting of the executive committee late this week or the first part of next week.

A number of executive committee members have not been appointed by central committeemen and there is no object in calling an election meeting until the membership is completed, O'Donnell said.

The central committee last week voted to set up an executive committee of 94 members with each of the 93 central committee members to name an executive committeeman from his precinct. The central committee members may also serve on the executive committee if they do not want to name some one else.

The additional member of the committee, or the 94th, may be the executive chairman if the commitee elects a committee head who is not a central committeeman.

The party is expected to elect a new executive chairman since O'Donnell has indicated he will not seek re-election because of his duties as acting county prosecutor.

That Extra Something!

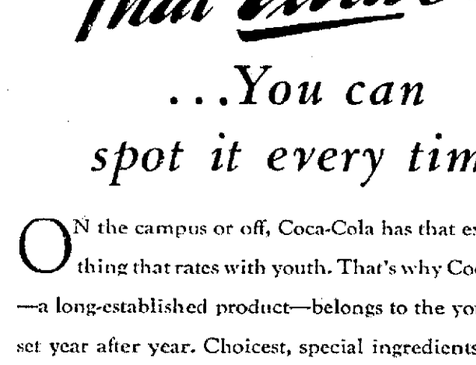
...You can spot it every time

ON the campus or off, Coca-Cola has that extra something that rates with youth. That's why Coca-Cola—a long-established product—belongs to the younger set year after year. Choicest, special ingredients and special care in its making, give Coca-Cola a special refreshing taste and quality.

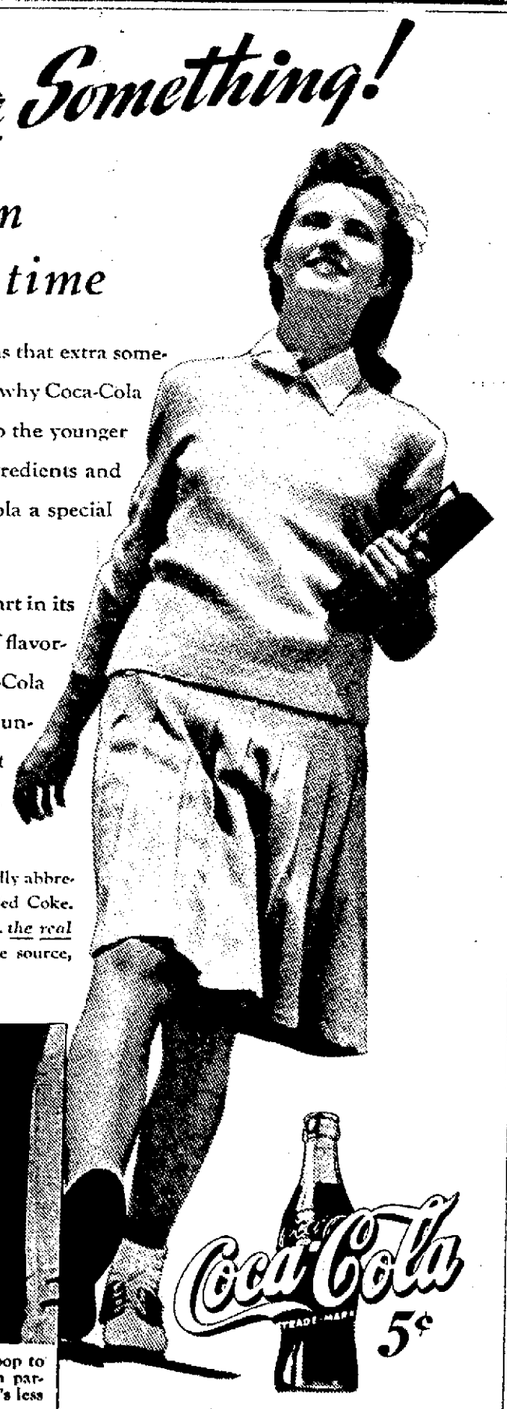
This unique taste comes from a finished art in its making, unknown to others . . . a blend of flavor-essences merging the ingredients of Coca-Cola into a taste all its own. And it leaves that unmistakable after-sense of refreshment that everybody recognizes . . . and welcomes.

* * *

It's natural for popular names to acquire friendly abbreviations. That's why you hear Coca-Cola called Coke. Coca-Cola and Coke mean the same thing . . . the real thing . . . "a single thing coming from a single source, and well known to the community".



"Let's go see if the Coke's in", and off they troop to enjoy youth's ritual of refreshment . . . a custom particularly "special" in these war days when there's less Coca-Cola.



The best is always the better buy!

Special Committee Ends Rubber Study

BROADWAY

—By Dorothy Kilgallen

(Note: Irving Hoffman, New York columnist for the Hollywood Reporter, gets around as much as any fellow on Broadway—and more than most. He believes that "Woman's Place Is In the Home Defense"—and here's why.—D. K.)

Irving Hoffman Says—

(If the characters in this column bear any resemblance to persons either living or dead, we hope they'll recognize themselves. It is not our intention to ridicule or discredit the many worthy organizations which have received official endorsement.)

There's a funny story behind the two gold stripes on the sleeves of all officers in one of the women's groups doing volunteer war work on the coast. Originally, the officers wore only one gold stripe to distinguish themselves from the rank and file, but a well known cinema star who joined the brigade recently thought that the insignia was a decoration rather than a sign of rank, and ordered one placed on her uniform when she enlisted in the worthy work. Rather than embarrass her, the officers voted to have their outfitter sew an extra piece of braid on their uniforms.

One of the local lovelies who wanted to do something more useful than depleting the stock at the midtown bars recently enrolled for volunteer nursing at a city hospital. On her first night in the ward, she received numerous requests for glasses of water, which she duly carried around and placed on the bedside tables. Later that night, when all the patients were asleep, she tip-toed around picked up the glasses one by one, and carried them off on a tray in the dark. When she got into the light, she looked at the glasses. Each one had a set of false teeth in it—and no indentification as to the owners.

A doting dame stopped one of those RAFliers in front of the Stage Door Canteen the other night. "I think it's perfectly wonderful," she gushed "to think that you go into the air to die for your country!" "Like heck I do, Ma'am," said the hero, "I go up to make some other chap die for HIS!"

Again at the Stage Door Canteen the other evening, a buck private approached the Officer of the Day and said, "You have a rule that soldiers can't make dates with the hostesses. Is that an unbreakable rule?" "It sure is!" emphatically stated the O. D. "Well, appealed the private, "there's a 50-year-old blond hostess chasing me all over the place. Won't you please ENFORCE the rule?"

Then there's the one about the Helen Hokinson character who toddled in to offer her services for war work. "We like to place women in positions for which they are best fitted," said the Colonel. What do you do best?" "Flower arranging, was the amazing retort.

At a session of a Red Cross class being taught what to do in the event a person's throat was cut, the instructor explained: "Press down on the nerves right above the collar bone." Up went a pupil's hand. "Wouldn't it be simpler to use a turniquet?" the pip piped.

Shortly after Pearl Harbor, a Hollywood secretary called up an organization which had been set up by the so-called smart set in Hollywood to aid the war effort. The girl, whose motives in offering her services to the war effort were strictly patriotic, was asked by a haughty voice at the other end of the phone if she had $30 to spend on a uniform. The girl replied that frankly she couldn't afford to spend that much for a uniform—and why did it have to be a $30 uniform. Couldn't it be a $5 uniform—or no uniform at all? The voice at the other end of the phone dismissed the secretary with the reply, "I'm sorry,—but all our members must wear the same uniforms—so you'll have to have $30 if you wish to join us!"

HOLLYWOOD

—By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD — Glamour factory at war:

It will be a long time, if ever, before those all - feminine casts supposed to be engendered by the war will hit the screen. As if in defiance of the prediction, or perhaps to put a large stock of currently available masculinity in the celluloid bank against future needs, some of the pictures are wholly or predominantly for men stars.

Coons

There's "Wake Island," saga of the Marines. There's a woman in the cast, but Barbara Britton will tell you she can scarcely find herself in the melee of action. Hers is the role of a wife who stays at home.

There's "Clear for Action"—with Robert Taylor, Charles Laughton, Brian Donlevy, Walter Brennan and a fair-sized section of a movie navy. A couple of women appear, but the roles are fleeting.

There's "Air Force"—with John Garfield, Harry Carey, Gig Young, Arthur Kennedy and other men. Three feminine roles, all small.

"Eagle Squadron" had only one important girl, Diana Barrymore, to a flock of male eagles. "Captains of the Clouds" followed the lead of "I Wanted Wings" in having its feminine protagonist, Brenda Marshall, play "heavy" to its raft of heroes. "Flying Tigers" has Anna Lee as heroine, but with that title, plus John Wayne and John Carroll, we give you one guess where the emphasis lies.

The turning point may come with the Joan Crawford film, "Women in Uniform," story of the WAACs, and with "Hands of Mercy," story of Army nurses in the Philippines.

THE turning point may be forced earlier, as some in Hollywood believe, by the enlistment of Clark Gable who finally won his sincere desire—acceptance as a private. The Gable example, unless actors as a group have become less sensitive, may have influenced by now a number of other men who have been sticking to their movie jobs until called. The popular acclaim for Gable's course (and it's deserved by a guy who couldn't be insincere if he tried) can have a potent effect in disparaging by inference the morale workers and the bond-sellers among the stars—many of whom, fortyish like Gable, couldn't stand the physical grind of a buck private's life.

IN THE unlikely event that too many of Hollywood's experienced actors get into uniform, this "essential industry" will be caught on the well-known horns. Aside from box-office values, there's an immediate problem to the breaking-in of acting recruits. That's raw film. The WPB is cracking down on industry use of a product made from munitions-essential materials, demanding still further economies.

One of the expedients already in use is prolonged rehearsals to cut down the number of "takes" on scenes.

Chatter Corner

Kevin J. Crotty, confined to General hospital with three fractured vertebrae, receiving calls and cards from his friends and associates at the Ohio Brass company . . . John C. Friday starting his job as clerk in the state liquor store on South Park street . . . Overheard on Park avenue west: "Every time I have a date with him I walk him past jewelry stores, but all he's bought so far is a watch for himself."

* * *

Printer Jim Gill complaining (well, not really) about all the work he has to do . . . Pt. Lawrence Murphy stopping in Mansfield on the way back to Fort Knox . . . Banker Paul Eliot and Attorney John Catlett engaged in casual conversation.

* * *

Martin Merschdorf taxiing home on his arrival back from New York at just about the time he'd ordinarily be going to work . . . Mrs. W. L. Miller asking a friend for a canning recipe . . . George (Ikey) Fetter, former star, among the interested spectators as the high school Tygers went through their first scrimmage session yesterday afternoon on the practice lot back of Stadium field.

Ann Fisher chatting with a friend from Galion.

Marine Staff Sergeant Cataldo getting a big hand at the Ohio theater as he bought two war bonds . . . B. A. (News-Journal) Bachmann going to a new job in Akron . . . Fritz (also News-Journal) Ackerman going into the army . . .

Biddle Expected to Submit Data on 1,000 Workers Cited as Subversives.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — Attorney General Francis Biddle is expected today to send to congress detailed reports on investigations of about 1,100 government employes accused of subversive activities by the Dies committee on un-American activities.

The committee, headed by Rep. Martin Dies (D.) Tex., sent to Biddle almost a year ago a list of persons in the government, who it charged were members of the Communist party or other groups which "advocate the overthrow of the federal government," and demanded that they be investigated.

If the charges were proven to be true, the committee asked that the employes be dismissed from federal service.

Biddle's report to congress will consist of three items—a statement by the attorney general, the federal bureau of investigation's report on investigations of the persons, and a report by an interdepartment committee appointed to advise government departments on questions involving alleged subversive activities within the government.

It was reported that the attorney general's statement finds that only two of the 1,100 persons investigated could be ousted from their positions for subversive activities. The majority of the persons on the Dies list were found to have no subversive views or connections, it was said.

In addition to the 1,100 persons named by the Dies committee, it was believed that the FBI investigated about 3,000 other government workers who individuals had charged were guilty of subversive activities. Inquiry into the activities of these employes resulted in less than 50 being named by the FBI as engaged in subversive work, it was reported.

HINTS USE OF PUPIL WORKERS

Hammond Would Excuse Them From Classes to Aid With Apple Harvest.

COLUMBUS — School officials will be asked to release youngsters from classes to help pick the state's 6,500,000-bushel commercial apple crop if other sources of labor supply prove inadequate, Wade Hammond, Ohio director of the U. S. employment service, said today.

He reported that the service expected some difficulty in finding sufficient help at the height of the apple harvest season, which begins Oct. 1.

Hammond declared that there were "no reports of a serious labor shortage" for tomato growers now harvesting a bumper crop with the aid of 10,000 pickers.

Harvesting of peaches, he asserted, will be completed in a week or 10 days, releasing an additional 2,000 workers for tomatoes, if they are needed.

The 18,000 workers required to harvest the corn crop between mid-September and late October probably can be obtained within a commuting radius of farms, but if labor shortages become serious, Hammond said, workers may be recruited from cities and brought in from neighboring states.

HITCH-HIKES WAY RIGHT INTO AUDIENCE WITH QUEEN MOTHER

(By International News Service)

LONDON—Private Ora Foster of Pontiac, Mich., had an unscheduled audience with Queen Mother Mary.

The American doughboy hitchhiked into the royal conference, it was disclosed today.

Trudging toward town on a Saturday night leave, Private Foster accepted a lift from a passing automobile and sank gratefully into the tonneau seat beside an elderly grey-haired woman and a British colonel.

"She asked a lot of questions and I talked my head off," Private Foster related today.

"But after she said 'I'm Queen Mary'—I was tongue-tied."

When fired Private Foster stepped into the automobile the colonel moved over, leaving him room to sit beside the gracious lady.

"I didn't talk much at first but she was interested in America and asked me a lot of questions and finally I got unwound," said Private Foster.

"I talked a streak for 45 minutes until we got to my camp.

"Then she gave me a disc on a chain. On one side it says 'For Luck' and on the other 'M. R.' (Mary Regina).

Asked what the queen mother had talked about, Private Foster was slightly confused and annoyed with himself for having hogged the conversation.

"I was too busy sounding off to remember much," he confessed.

They might be old, but they're plenty patriotic—the members of Mansfeild's Old Age Pensioners club. Some weeks ago, when it was announced that the Labor day parade was being designed as an all-out patriotic demonstration, delegates appealed to Harry Boyer, program and publicity chairman, for a marching place in the column. "You're too old, and many of you too feeble to walk such a distance," Boyer told them. "We're anxious to do our share in making this demonstration a huge success" the delegates retorted and they would not be denied. Yesterday, they advised Boyer that the Mansfield Rapid Transit company is donating two buses to haul the pensioners in the pageant. WILL REPORT TO ROOSEVELT BY LABOR DAY

Nation-wide Gasoline Ration Plan Hinges on Report of Baruch Group.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — The president's special rubber committee today rounded out four weeks of investigation and authoritative sources said the group would submit its findings and recommendations to Mr. Roosevelt by Labor day.

A decision on nationwide gasoline rationing as well as on the steps to supply vital rubber needs hinges upon the committee's studies, the president said in appointing the three-man group headed by Bernard M. Baruch, chariman of the war industries board in World war 1.

The other members are Dr. James B. Conant, president of Harvard university, and Dr. Karl T. Compton, president of Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

The committee members have given no indication of the trend of their studies.

Every car owner in America has a direct concern in their work, but perhaps those awaiting the report with the greatest interest were the western and mid-western senators who sponsored legislation to establish a separate government authority for making synthetic rubber from agricultural and forest products.

It was in connection with his veto of their bill that Mrs Roosevelt announced the appointment of the special rubber committee.

Under plans worked out by the war production board in conjunction with the reconstruction finance corporation, synthetic rubber plants with an ultimate capacity of more than 800,000 tons a year are projected or under construction. Of the total production, about 200,000 tons a year would be from alcohol, the remainder from petroleum sources. Lawmakers from states with grain surpluses protested that rubber could be produced cheaper and quicker from such farm crops.

"This bill is not dead, it's only sleeping," remarked Senator Norris (Ind.-Neb.), expressing the hope that the Baruch committee's report would be "fair and impartial."

Under senate rules, a motion to override the president's veto would be in order any time before the end of the current session. For that reason the farm-rubber group has adopted a wait-and-see policy.

Bystander Killed As He Tries to Halt Love Fight

DAYTON—(U.P.)—An innocent bystander, who tried to break up a lover's quarrel, was killed yesterday in a Dayton residential district.

George Chamberlain, 62-year-old war plant guard, was shot to death because he tried to prevent Guy Liber, 52, from shooting Mrs. Mae Kemp, 42.

Liber, who police said had promised to "get even" with Mrs. Kemp for spurning his affections, shot Chamberlain to death after wounding Mrs. Kemp. He then committed suicide.

As Chamberlain started to work yesterday afternoon, Mrs. Kemp ran into his front yard screaming for help. Liber, armed with a pistol, followed. Chamberlain stepped between them and Liber shot him through the head.

TWO PLUS TWO MAKES FOUR

It has often been said by cynics that figures don't lie, but that liars figure.

Nevertheless, straight arithmetic (the good old two plus two equals four) is the surest known way to arrive at any accurate conclusion about anything.

Down in Washington, Congress talks and talks and talks. They fill the Congressional Record with long speeches. They express many opinions verbally and in print. When it gets down to brass tacks though, the decision is arrived at by good old arithmetic. The majority vote is the final decision.

We want to know what this community thinks about something that is very important to you personally and to the entire community. We want to know this because it is going to be very helpful to you. That's why we are very sure you will be glad to give us this information.

We could ask you to write letters but we can't count up what you say in letters and arrive at an accurate conclusion.

We could send interviewers to take up your time in your homes, but if they just talked with you, we couldn't count your opinions. To have accurate information, it would be necessary for those interviewers to ask everyone the same question and simply put down a check mark on a chart indicating your preference. Then, by arithmetic, we could count up and find out how many liked this and how many liked that.

We'll tell you all about it very soon.

Hello Rex: Prospects for a basketball league don't look so hot for this winter, do they? I don't envy you your job, as I can't see what you are going to do for copy. Why don't you take up skiing?

I have certainly seen the country in the last few months. I got my commission as a second lieutenant in anti-aircraft from Camp Davis, N. C. I then reported to Camp Callan, Calif., for further duty and was only there five days when I got a notice to report down here for overseas shipment. Well, here I am, writing.

I manage to get a squint at the News-Journal every now and then, and was very sorry for "Doc" Daugherty that the Loans had such a tough break going after their third straight title.

* * *

I certainly miss sports I haven't had a chance to do anything along that line for months. I did get in a round of golf out at New Orleans Country club the other day, and it really felt good to crack that old ball after laying off for so long.

Played with Dr. Charles Brown from Mansfield. He is now stationed here as a first lieutenant in the medical corps.

I see where you took a vacation not so long ago, and sharpened up your golf game We'll have to get together for a game when I get back.

* * *

Tell Ira Kocheiser not to work too late at night, and that I would like to hear from him and anyone else that would like to write. Best regards, Johnny Burns.

Lt. John V. Burns,
A. P. O. 834,
Care Postmaster,
New Orleans, La.

If you and the rest of the boys keep on writing, John, I'll never have to fear about copy. You can fill this space much better than I can, and without any of the worry.

Comes a post card from Watty Slabaugh, vacationing in New York, and the card is from the Hotel New Yorker and I do not know whether he is staying there, or whether that is just where he buys his stationery.

He says he'll be back in town Friday and ready to continue play in the News-Journal city tennis tourney on that day, and for me to go ahead and schedule him up.

* * *

He's scheduled For semi-finals singles play Friday at 5 p. m. against Bob Enos, and for doubles championships Saturday afternoon when Slabaugh and Lowell Bourns meet Enos and Gadfield.

Present plans call for championship play next Sunday afternoon in men's, women's and boys' singles. So in case it rains Sunday, we'll still have Labor day for the title tests.

* * *

"Just spent all afternoon at Forest Hills," writes Watty. "Saw everyone, including Jinx Falkenburg. What's more, she doesn't hit a bad ball." Ha! He even noticed her tennis.

Teams Continue In Torrid Race

(By Associated Press)

Kansas City, Milwaukee and Columbus, little more than three percentage points apart, continued to run one-two-three in the hectic American association pennant chase today, leaving Toledo to produce the only change in the first division standings.

* * *

While all three leaders were winning last night, Toledo and Louisville began their separate battle for fourth place; and the first round was all Toledo. The Mudhens won a doubleheader, 3-1 and 6-0, took over the No. 4 rung previously held by Louisville and now enjoy a game and a half edge on their rivals.

* * *

With only six more days to go before the season closes, the standings read:

	W	L	Pct.
Kansas City	81	66	.5510
Milwaukee	79	65	.5486
Columbus	80	66	.5479
Toledo	74	69	.5170

Kansas City clung to the lead by edging out Minneapolis, 4-3. Milwaukee took advantage of Pitcher Belknap's wildness to defeat St. Paul, 6-3, and Columbus swamped Indianapolis, 12-2.

Hurlers Threaten 20-Mark

Several Come Close To Charmed Mound Circle.

By JUDSON BAILEY
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

THERE has been no Bobby Feller around this season, threatening the sacrosanct ranks of baseball's 30-game winners, but it looks like the major leagues will have their full quota of 20-game pitchers.

* * *

Right now Mort Cooper and Rookie Johnny Beazley of the St. Louis Cardinals, Claude Passeau of the Chicago Cubs, Tex Hughson of the Boston Red Sox and Ernie Bonham of the New York Yankees seem almost certain to cross the line that is considered the mark of a successful pitcher.

Cooper and Passeau won their 18th victories yesterday, Hughson nailed his the day before, and Beazley and Bonham have 17. Additional prospects for the society are Whitlow Wyatt of Brooklyn and Johnny Vander Meer of Cincinnati, each of whom has won 16 games, and an outside chance may be conceded to some of the group of 15-game winners such as Curt Davis, who has been doubling in relief roles for the Dodgers and recently won two games in two days

Cooper came through last night against the Boston Braves with a 4-3 triumph that kept the Cardinals within 3½ games of the first place Dodgers

The superstitious righthander, who wore uniform No. 13 until he found he couldn't get over the hurdle of 13 victories a few weeks ago, had No. 18 on his back last night in his system of rotating his numbers to conform with his pitching goals.

He allowed nine hits and fanned seven.

Brooklyn had placed the issue squarely up to the Redbirds by winning an afternoon tussle from the Pittsburgh Pirates 4-2 on the five-hit hurling of Kirby Higbe. It was the 14th triumph for the Dodger righthander. The defeat mathematically eliminated the Pirates from the pennant race.

* * *

Passeau's 18th victory was by a 10-5 score that snapped a six-game winning streak of the New York Giants. The veteran was rapped for 13 hits and his teammates contributed to the confusion with five errors, but Passeau never let the Giants get out of control.

* * *

Cincinnati completed a sweep of its four-game series with the tail-end Phils with a 4-3 verdict achieved in the 11th inning when Frank McCormick singled with the bases loaded.

The Washington Senators won the day's only game in the American league in the same fashion as James (Mickey) Vernon singled with the sacks filled in the 10th to nose out the Cleveland Indians 4 to 3.

Tygers Hold Scrimmage

Jump Into Heavy Work In Opening Practice.

There was no fooling around yesterday in opening practice sessions of this fall's gridiron Tygers of Mansfield high school on the practice lot back of Stadium field.

Through morning and afternoon sessions, Coach Paul Snyder and his corps of assistants kept the Tygers working on just a few plays, seeking perfection in every detail of those days. And they weren't merely in there walking through the plays, they were trying them against a battling defensive combination that provided plenty of body contact for opening practice drills.

"How do they look?" Snyder asked after a short scrimmage had ended the afternoon session. "Not so bad for this time of year," he was told. "They're coming along," he agreed, "but they've got a long way to go."

And that seems to be the answer to the football question at Mansfield high school this autumn. The material shows plenty of promise, but it's a green team compared to the smooth working machine which the Tygers graduated a year ago.

It will take a lot of work to smooth off the edges and round out a co-ordinated playing unit in time for the opening game with Akron West on Sept. 18, and Snyder indicated that a lot of work is just what the boys are going to get.

Bill Talbert Meets Segura

Given Best Chance To Upset Ecuadorean Star.

NEW YORK —(U.P.)— Billy Talbert, a sandy-haired kid who took up tennis for his health, was in the unenviable position today of being America's first line of defense against the Pan-American peril to the National Amateur tennis championship

The 23-year-old Cincinnati insurance salesman is the next opponent of Francisco (Pancho) Segura, the bounding Ecuadorean who handles a racquet with two hours. And Talbert, ranked 10th nationally and fourth in the nationals, is rated the best chance of any man in the American contingent to halt the Latin Larruper.

Talbert, who takes insulin injections daily for diabetes, has a strong net game and, tennis critics say, this is the only type player who can conquer the hard-hitting baseline player from the Andes. Cincinnati Billy stopped Ted Schroeder, top-seeded American, with such tactics in the recent Newport invitation.

Talbert and seventh-seeded Gardnar Mulloy, Jacksonville, Fla., led the field into the quarter-finals at Forest Hills and were joined yesterday by Segura, Alejo Russell of Argentina, Schroeder, and sixth-seeded Seymour Greenberg, Chicago.

Second-ranking Frankie Parker, Los Angeles, meets Bill Vogt, Philadelphia, and eighth-ranking George Richards, Montebello, Cal., plays Ladislaw Hecht, former Czech Davis cupper, today for the right to enter the quarter finals.

Segura continued his typhoon-like advance yesterday with a 6-0, 6-1, 6-2, victory over Harris Everett, seventh-ranking player from Jacksonville. Russell's endurance enabled him to come from behind to halt Sid Wood, New York, the 1931 Wimbledon champion, 5-7, 7-5, 6-4, 6-4. Schroeder stopped Jim Everett, Chicago, 7-5, 9-11, 6-4, 6-4, and Greenberg, national clay court champion, belted over Bob Smidl, Chicago, 6-1, 6-1, 6-1.

Blond Pauline Betz, second-seeded entrant from Los Angeles, paced the women's singles field into the quarter-finals, and was accompanied by fourth-ranking Helen Bernhard, New York; fifth-seeded Mary Arnold, Los Angeles; seventh-ranking Doris Hart, Miami, Fla., and unseeded Shirley Fry, Akron, O. Trailing the field are top-seeded Louise Brough Beverly Hills, who meets Millicent Lang, New York; third-ranked Margaret Osborne, San Francisco, who engages Marta Andrade, New York, and eighth-placed Mrs Helen Ribbany, New York, who engages Barbara Nields, Rye, N. Y.

Indians Close Eastern Trip

Punchless Tribe Drops Extra-Inning Battle.

PHILADELPHIA — (AP) —Dropping six out of nine eastern games for a .333 mark, the Cleveland Indians today wind up their last seaboard junket of the year with a single contest against the cellar-dwelling Athletics.

* * *

Still punchless in the pinches, the Tribe twice left a runner stranded, on third with none out as the Washington Senators triumphed 4 to 3 in 10 innings yesterday and won the three-game series, two to one.

* * *

Gene Desautels, leading off in the fifth, hit an easy grounder which went between Ray Hoffman's legs for an error. The Cleveland catcher stole second and reached third when Jake Early threw the ball into center field. But the next three batters went out in order.

In the seventh Manager Lou Boudreau led off with a triple but again the Tribe couldn't score him. Ray Mack grounded out and after Desautels walked, Jim Bagby bounded into a double play.

Bagby, deprived of his 16th victory, made only one bad pitch in the nine innings he worked. It was a curve that Early belted for a two-run homer in the seventh.

The Indians, who have been held to three or less runs in all but two of their past 24 games, scored twice in the second on singles by Les Fleming and Jeff Heath and a long double by Desautels Cleveland tied it up in the eighth when Oris Hockett doubled, took third on an infield out and crossed the plate on Ken Keltner's outfield fly.

Alejandro Carrasquel started trouble for Cleveland by leading off with a single in the extra inning. George Case followed with a one-base hit and Stan Spence was purposely passed, filling the bases. After Chubby Dean relieved Bagby, Jimmy Vernon singled in the winning run.

* * *

Tom Ferrick, winner of two against as many defeats, was Boudreau's choice to face Dick Fowler in today's game.

Colleges Reduce Football Program

COLUMBUS —(INS)— Last year Ohio college teams played 209 football games but, because of the war, only 171 games are on the 1942 slate.

The Ohio conference, which had 50 games on its championship schedule a year ago, has but 43 this year. The travel situation is reflected in the fact that Ohio sent teams into foreign states for 61 games last year, but only 29 games are booked outside the Buckeye confines this season

* * *

Two Ohio colleges, Marietta and Ashland, have given up football for the duration, and little Rio Grande, which hasn't won a game in four years, had only two games booked Sept. 1.

* * *

Two newcomers to the Buckeye gridiron wars will be on hand, however. They are both service teams — the Wright-Patterson Field Flyers and the Iowa Cadets, who meet Ohio State Nov. 28.

Tourney Reaches Championship Play

SHELBY — Harry Smith will play Dow Horner in the finals of the championship men's golf tournament at the Shelby Country club.

In the finals of the second flight, Carl Daugherty will play Bradley Lewis. L. A. Dennis recently won the third flight honors.

Mrs. Gerald Dennis defeated Mrs. W. R Morris 3 and 2 this week to win the women's championship tournament. This was the first year that she had won the annual affair.

The final round of the women's handicap tournament will be played at the club links. The weekly ladies' day program is scheduled for that day.

Redmen ranks were depleted by one casualty during the Monday scrimmage when Charles Schuck, first ranking player for a halfback position suffered an injured shoulder which the examining doctor says will keep him out of the game for the season. Muscles were torn in the shoulder and the shoulder bone may be cracked, the doctor said.

Golfers Here For Tourney

Begin Arriving Today For Ohio Senior Joust.

Members of the Ohio Senior Golf association began arriving at Westbrook Country club today for their annual tournament to be held Thursday and Friday, in which over 100 entries are expected to compete.

First on the course this morning for tune-up rounds were Louis Brush, Canton publisher, F. Bayer of Toledo, and Ralph Lewis of Marion.

While, for most members, the annual tournament is as much a social affair as it is a test of golf, last year's tourney brought out some fine links play, and an exciting finish in the championship flight as Frank Pelton, Cleveland shotmaker, canned a 12-foot putt on the 17th green of the second day round to edge Joe Wells, veteran East Liverpool tournament star, for the championship.

The Seniors will play 18 holes each of the two days, with tee-time Thursday scheduled at 9.30 a. m. Thursday night the association will hold its annual banquet and business meeting at the new Westbrook clubhouse.

HURLS EXTRA-INNING NO-HITTER, LOSES

WILLKES-BARRE, Pa.—(AP)—Allie Reynolds pitched 10⅔ innings of no-hit ball for Wilkes-Barre of the Eastern league last night—but lost in 11 innings.

Elmira won, 1 to 0, when Reynolds allowed a walk and a sacrifice, then granted a single which scored the lone run.

THEATERS

Held Over.

"Pardon My Sarong," the new Abbott and Costello comedy, will show through Friday at the Ohio. Held over by popular request the film features the antics of the two filmland cut-ups as bus drivers in Chicago and later as the main attraction on an uncharted South Sea Isle inhabited by natives. The four Ink Spots enliven the picture with songs and dances and Robert Paige and Virginia Bruce add a touch of romance.

Romantic Comedy.

Irene Dunne is appearing in a new comedy, "Lady In a Jam," opening today at the Madison. She has the role of an irresponsible New York heiress who goes bankrupt and travels west to recoup her fortune by working in an abandoned Arizona gold mine. Patric Knowles and Ralph Bellamy are in the supporting cast with the latter playing the role of a show-off cowboy, quite as daffy in his own way, as the girl is in hers. Knowles has the role of a psychiatrist.

Dramatic Story.

Set in the days when the country was young, "The Great Man's Lady," opening Thursday at the Ritz, presents the romance of two men and a girl at a time when the west was only a trackless waste. Barbara Stanwyck, Joel McCrea and Brian Donlevy top the cast and the players include Lucien Littlefield and Etta McDaniel. Miss Stanwyck has the role of a girl who elopes from her staid Philadelphia home with McCrea, a Lochinvar bound for the west, with the aim of building a great city. "Stick to Your Guns," the co-feature, stars William Boyd.

Women's Thriller.

"Parachute Nurse," a thrilling picture dealing with the Florence Nightingales of the air, opens Thursday at the Park with a cast headed by Kay Harris, Marguerite Chapman and William Wright. A former Bucyrus, O., girl, Lauretta M. Schimmoler, now president of the Aerial Nurses corps of America, acted as technical director of the film and also portrays a woman captain. The film shows the training women undergo to become paranurses and a love story also threads the picture. The Range Busters are featured in "Texas Trouble Shooters," the second film.

STOCKS RESUME NARROW DRIFTS ON DAY'S MART

Increased Tax Reserves on Corporate Profits Cut Earnings 30%.

NEW YORK — Stocks resumed their narrow and uneven drift in today's market.

Slightly higher were Sears Roebuck, Schenley Distillers, Consolidated Edison, Great Northern and North American. In the fractionally lower division were Santa Fe, Chrysler, General Motors, General Foods and United Aircraft.

Fresh light on the effect of increased tax reserves on corporate profits in the first half of this year was provided by a survey prepared by the National Industrial conference board showing an average drop of 30 per cent in the earnings of 333 industrial corporations.

This decline, the report noted, was in the face of record breaking production. The railroad industry was a notable exception to the trend with fifty-nine roads reporting an average increase of 70 per cent in earnings for the period as compared with the first six months of 1941.

FALLS DEAD

Ashland Man Dies as He Waits For Ride To Work.

ASHLAND—Stricken by a sudden heart attack while waiting for a ride to work at the army ordnance plant in Marion, Victor A. Sackett, 55, lifelong Ashland resident, dropped dead on the street early this morning.

A passerby, noticing Sackett lying on the sidewalk in front of a store, called police as well as Dr. George Emery, who said that death was due to heart stoppage. The body was removed to the Denbow-Baer funeral home.

Mr. Sackett is survived by his widow, Forrest Mae, and son, Ned, of Ashland, two grandchildren, and two sisters, Mrs. E. A. Jacob and Mrs. Vic Whiting of Ashland.

Funeral services will be held at 2:30 p. m. Friday in the home with Rev. H. E. Andrews, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Ashland, officiating. Burial will be made in Ashland cemetery.

Advices reaching Chungking said five divisions totalling 100,000 Japanese troops had been sent north after being withdrawn from the China war theater.

A communique said "our ground forces are closely engaged" with the enemy in the Kokoda sector, 60 miles west of Port Moresby. Allied planes heavily strafed Japanese positions and lines of communication.

Action in the Milne bay sector, on the southeast tip of New Guinea, was described as limited to "scattered jungle fighting of a guerrilla type."

A spokesman at United Nations headquarters said Japanese losses had been heavy as the enemy fell into a carefully prepared ambush by Australian forces supported by a small group of U. S. service troops.
